Shot in Head From Ambush at Dallas

President and Mrs. Kennedy With Governor Connally Begin Fatal Ride

Johnson Sworn In

DALLAS (AP)—Lyndon B. Johnson was sworn in as president of the United States at 2:38 p.m., EST, today. The oath was administered by U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes. Johnson took the oath aboard the presidential plane at Dallas Love field. He was preparing to fly to Washington to take over the U.S. government.

Schools Close

Premier Bennett asked all B.C. schools to close this afternoon in memory of President Kennedy.

He relayed the request to his Victoria office from Vancouver where he is staying before leaving Saturday for an Ottawa conference.

'Terrible Thing'—Rosellini

OLYMPIA, Wash. (CP)—

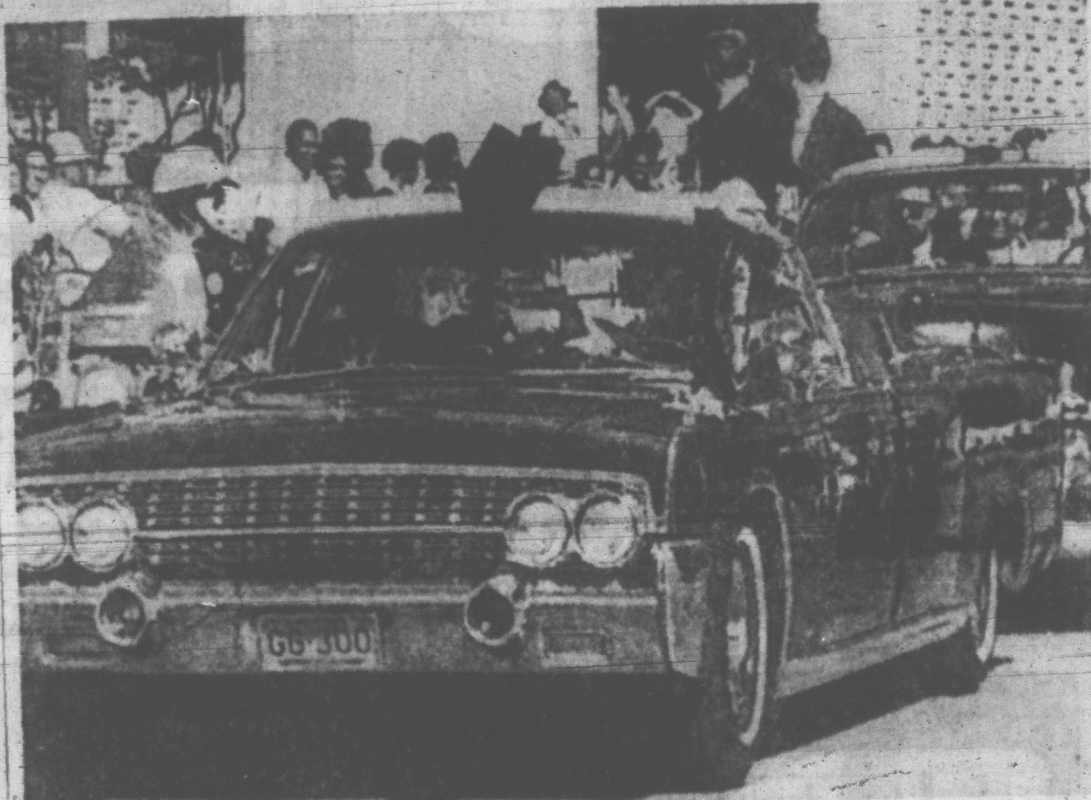

"Oh, my god."

That was the immediate reaction of Washington State Governor Albert Rosellini today on being informed of the death of President Kennedy by assassination in Dallas, Texas.

"This is a terrible thing. I'm shocked out of reason and almost out of words."

Rosellini's exclamation was typical of the reaction in high and low circles over Washington State.

His voice quavering, Rosellini said: "This is a tremendous loss, not only to this country, but to the world."

'B.C. in Deep Mourning For Loss of Good Friend'

British Columbia is in deep mourning for a good friend, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today.

The premier made the following official government statement on the death of President Kennedy:

"In the passing of the great President of the United States of America, which is a shock to the whole Western world, we in British Columbia especially feel this loss, as he was always a good friend to our province and to Canada."

"He was an outstanding husband and father, a great world statesman, and a good friend. All British Columbians are indeed in deep mourning today."

Mr. Bennett kept a photograph of Mr. Kennedy in his

Bullets Fired From Building

(Times News Services)

DALLAS, Texas — President John F. Kennedy, 36th president of the United States, was shot to death today by a hidden assassin armed with a high-powered rifle.

The identity of the assassin or assassins was not immediately known.

Kennedy, 46, lived about 30 minutes after a sniper cut him down as his limousine left downtown Dallas. Reporters said the shot that hit him was fired about 10:30 a.m. PST (1:30 p.m. EST). A hospital announcement said he died at approximately 1 p.m. (11 a.m. PST) of a bullet wound in the head.

Automatically, the mantle of the presidency fell to Vice-President Lyndon B. Johnson, a native Texan who had been riding two cars behind Kennedy.

The assistant presidential press secretary, Malcolm Kilduff, said Johnson was not hit. Johnson previously had been reported wounded.

The president's body was scheduled to be flown to Washington this afternoon.

Futile Effort to Save Life

Kennedy died at Parkland Hospital, where his bullet-pierced body had been taken to save his life.

Lying wounded at the same hospital was Governor John Connally of Texas, who was cut down by the same fusillade that ended the life of the youngest man ever elected to the presidency.

Connally and his wife had been riding with the President and Mrs. Kennedy.

Jacqueline Kennedy cradled her dying husband's blood-smeared head in her arms as the presidential limousine raced to the hospital.

City Hunted for Assassin

Police ordered an unprecedented dragnet of the city, hunting for the assassin.

They believe the fatal shots were fired by a white man about 30, slender of build, weighing about 165 pounds and standing five feet, 10 inches.

The Dallas sheriff's department said a rifle had

Suspect Held

BULLETIN

DALLAS (UPI) — Police today seized Lee H. Oswald, identified as chairman of a "Fair Play for Cuba Committee," as the prime suspect in the assassination of President Kennedy.

Police said Oswald, 24, was accused in the slaying of a Dallas policeman shortly after the shooting of the president.

TRAINMAN WINS ROUND WITH PGE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Raymond Baglee took a roundhouse swing at the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and wound up the winner.

Baglee contended the provincial government-owned railway fired him, terming him unsuitable for his job, but did not return him to his previous position.

The railway agreed Thursday to say he had resigned and offered him another job.

The battle began during the Sept. 30 election campaign when Baglee shouted "Seig heil" and saluted Premier Bennett who was campaigning from the train.

The trainman contended he was fired and termed unsuitable for his shout at the premier. The railway denied this.

But Baglee didn't like the idea of being called "unsuitable on his job and carried on with his fight for reinstatement."

"I realized that if I got my job back, I'd be sticking my neck out," he said in refusing to return to his job.

Railway officials were unavailable for comment.

been found in a staircase on the fifth floor of a building near the scene of the assassination. It was a 7.65 Mauser. The German-made army rifle had a telescopic sight with one shell left in the chamber. Three spent shells were found nearby.

Shortly before Kennedy's death became known, he was administered the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church. He had been the first Roman Catholic president in American history.

Even as two clergymen hovered over the fallen president in the hospital emergency room, doctors and nurses administered blood transfusions.

The new president, Johnson, and his wife left the hospital a half-hour after Kennedy's death. Reporters had no opportunity to question them.

The horror of the assassination was mirrored in an eyewitness account by Senator Ralph Yarborough (Dem., Tex.), who had been riding three cars behind Kennedy.

"You could tell something awful and tragic had happened," the senator told reporters before Kennedy's death became known. His voice breaking and his eyes red-rimmed, Yarborough said:

"I could see a secret service man in the president's car leaning on the car with his hands in anger, anguish and despair. I knew then something tragic had happened."

Yarborough had counted three rifle shots as the presidential limousine left downtown Dallas through a triple underpass. The shots were fired from above—possibly from one of the bridges or from a nearby building.

One witness, television reporter Mal Cough, said he saw a gun emerge from an upper storey of a warehouse commanding an unobstructed view of the presidential car.

Kennedy was the first president to be assassinated since William McKinley was shot in 1901.

It was the first death of a president in office since Franklin D. Roosevelt died of a cerebral hemorrhage at Warm Springs, Ga., in April, 1945.

Emergency Operation

Kidnuff told reporters that Governor Connally, a Democrat, was wounded in the right chest in the same ambush that felled the president.

Connally was rushed into surgery for a two-hour emergency operation.

Connally also was hit in the right wrist.

Though Mrs. Kennedy cried "Oh, no" in horror and despair after her husband was shot, she did not collapse or give way to hysteria.

When she entered the hospital, her clothing was covered with blood from her husband's wounds.

The entire building where the sniper was located was evacuated. People were working in the building at the time of the shooting.

Dallas Inspector J. H. Sawyer said:

"Police found the remains of fried chicken and paper on the fifth floor. Apparently the person had been there quite a while."

Races Away From Scene

After the fatal shots were fired at Kennedy, the stricken President's secret service driver raced away from the scene at top speed, heading for the nearest hospital and trying to get the presidential party out of range of further gunfire.

Kennedy, Connally and their wives had been riding together in the president's dark blue bubbletop convertible. The transparent plastic roof of the vehicle had been removed for the motorcade.

Secret service agents riding with the president and in a second convertible following close behind, immediately drew pistols and automatic weapons.

But they were unable to get a shot at the gunman.

Dallas motorcycle officers, ranged around the cavalcade, took off across a field in the direction from which the murderer apparently had fired.

The motorcade, which had just passed through downtown crowds standing 10 to 12 deep along each curb, broke apart in pandemonium as secret service agents rushed Kennedy and Connally to the hospital.

Ironically, Kennedy was shot to death at a spot where there were few spectators, after driving within handshaking distance of many thousands.

Crowd Delays Ambulance

A crowd of stunned Dallas citizens thronged around the hospital where Kennedy died. The ambulance which took the body from the institution was forced almost to a halt at one point because of the silent waiting people.

Adding poignancy to the tragedy was the fact that both Kennedy children will have birthdays within the next week.

Caroline will be six on Nov. 27 and John Jr. will be three on Nov. 25.

TWO OTHERS SHOT DOWN

DALLAS, Texas (AP)—A secret service agent and a Dallas policeman were shot and killed today some distance from the area where President Kennedy was assassinated. No other information was immediately available.

FAMILY LIFE HAS BEEN 'HELL'

'Did His Duty' Declares Wife

VIENNA (Reuters)—The wife of a Vienna police inspector said today her family's life has been "hell" since word became known of her husband's participation in the wartime arrest of concentration camp victim Anne Frank.

"I don't know why they don't leave my husband in peace," Mrs. Barbara Silberbauer said in an interview with a Vienna newspaper.

"At that time he did his duty just like everybody else."

Her 52-year-old husband, Karl, was suspended last month from his post after admitting his role in the arrest of the Frank family, whose hiding place in an Amsterdam attic was betrayed to the Gestapo.

In the interview with the Vienna newspaper The Express, Mrs. Silberbauer said "our house is besieged and everyone points at us."

Silberbauer has left Anne to stay with relatives, she said.

"When the Frank family was arrested, my husband was just going to go off duty. At 11:30 (a.m.) the phone call betraying the hiding place came through."

"The Frank family was a family like hundreds of others. Who could have known at that time that Anne Frank would become so famous through her diary?"

Mrs. Silberbauer denied her husband knew the name of the family's betrayer.

"I think he would have no reason to keep silent about it," she said.

Dr. Simon Wiesenthal, head of the Jewish Documentation Centre in Vienna, was reported seeking further evidence on Silberbauer's role in the arrest.

He said he was anxious to establish whether Silberbauer had arrested the Frank family on his own initiative or whether he had orders to do so.

The Vienna police department announced today that Silberbauer would be called before a board of police investigators about his Gestapo past. The Dec. 17 to answer charges of board could dishonorably discharging him from the force.

Plant Extract Leukemia Cure?

LONDON (Reuters) — The killer blood disease leukemia has been successfully treated with a chemical extract of the Madagascar periwinkle, a tropical trailing plant, the medical journal Lancet said here Thursday.

Two London physicians — Dr. John Martin and Dr. Nigel Compton — reported that when 19 adult patients were treated with vincristine sulphate, extracted from the plant, the majority of them responded quickly.

Four patients showed no evidence of leukemia and returned to normal life. Tumors were reduced by half or more, or the leukemia was localized and controlled, in seven cases. Five other cases showed lesser improvement.

Treatment brought rapid results, often within three to seven weeks.

Ten patients suffering from Hodgkins' disease (lymphoma) also all showed partial or complete remission after being treated with the substance.

The periwinkle plant attracted attention because of its West Indian reputation as a herbal cure.

"While it would be quite misleading on the basis of this study to claim that the malignant process treated can be satisfactorily controlled for long, there is no doubt that very rapid and sometimes complete remissions can be obtained," the doctors said.

DEVOTING himself to a regular day's work French Premier Charles de Gaulle marked his 73rd birthday today with no fanfare. The elderly statesman requested that no ceremony be held to mark the occasion.

UNOFFICIAL RETURNS SHOW LEAD TRIMMED

Japan's Conservatives Keep Power

TOKYO (AP) — Despite inroads by moderate leftists and independents, Premier Hayato Ikeda's conservatives maintained overwhelming control of the Japanese Parliament in final unofficial election returns today.

Though Ikeda appeared to have won a mandate to continue at the helm of the pro-Western government, the winning margin of his Liberal-Democratic party in Thursday's election of a new lower house fell below his expectations.

The final unofficial returns gave the Liberal-Democrats 283 seats in the 467-seat ruling lower house. This was 13 less than the 296 won in 1960 and three short of the 286 the conservatives held at dissolution three weeks ago.

Ikeda had asked for 300 seats and confidently expected at least 290.

Ikeda's main opposition, the Socialists, who lean towards Red China, won 144 seats, one less than the 145 chalked up in 1960 and seven more than they held at dissolution. Political experts had predicted they would score sizable gains.

The biggest surprise came from the moderate Democratic Socialists, who split with the Socialists in 1959 and, until today, had appeared to go steadily downhill.

When they broke from the Socialists, the Democratic Socialists had 40 members. This was whittled to 17 in 1960, and fell to 14 by dissolution. In Thursday's balloting, the party won 23 seats.

The other gains were by the Communists, who upped their seats to five from three, and the Independents who advanced from six in 1960, and two at dissolution, to 12.

The disparity in the 1960 election figures and those at the dissolution is due to deaths and resignations. Japan has no by-elections to fill such vacancies. Most major political figures won re-election handily. About 71 per cent of the eligible voters, a bit low for Japan, cast ballots. The vote totalled 41,500,000.

'WILL NEVER BE SUBJUGATED'

Erhard Predicts Russia Will Free East Germany

PARIS (Reuters) — West Germany's new Chancellor Ludwig Erhard left for home today after holding his first talks as government leader with French President de Gaulle, reaffirming the need for Franco-German unity.

Erhard said at a luncheon with de Gaulle before his departure that it was "illogical" to imagine that West Germany opposed all contact with Russia.

Erhard said it was realistic to hope Russia might someday abandon its domination of East Germany, which he described as a "heavy burden" on Russia's over-all policy.

"You often hear it said, in our own country as well, that it would be unrealistic to suppose that the Soviet Union would ever give up the zone it occupies in Germany."

"I reply that it is still more unrealistic to suppose that in the long run it could prove more important for the Soviet Union to maintain by force its hold on a relatively small area whose population will never let itself be subjugated."

Erhard urged nothing be done within the European six-nation Common Market and the seven-nation European Free Trade Association that might obstruct future trade groupings.

Erhard said the common interests of the peoples grouped in the Atlantic alliance were so obvious that there was no other fruitful alternative than co-operation on major world economic and political questions.

Diplomatic sources here said the wide agreement reached between Erhard and de Gaulle on European political union, agriculture, tariffs, Germany and Berlin was "a valuable and substantial achievement."

In a communique issued at the close of their talks, the two leaders expressed determination to ensure the success of Common Market negotiations on agriculture.

This was in part achieved by France's agreeing to meet the German view on Europe's attitude to the "Kennedy round" of tariff negotiations.

The two leaders appeared to have cleared obstacles to further economic integration of the six, and also to get moving toward political organization of a united Europe—one of the main objectives of Erhard's visit.

Sees Election Within Year

TORONTO (CP)—The author of a controversial book on Opposition Leader Diefenbaker predicted Thursday the veteran member of Parliament will retain control of the Progressive Conservative party and lead it into a general election within the next year.

Peter C. Newman, whose book Renegade in Power is a commentary on Mr. Diefenbaker's years as prime minister, said the election will be forced by the conflicting ambitions of Canada's two leading politicians.

Prime Minister Pearson "is becoming more and more convinced that his minority position is intolerable," and Mr. Diefenbaker "is becoming more and more convinced that his position away from power is intolerable," Mr. Newman said in a prepared address to the Empire Club.

In the Downtown Days shopping section which appeared in the Times Wednesday, a story regarding Victoria Photo Supply Ltd. referred to its participation in a travel agency.

Fred Tanner, owner-manager, says it may have presented the inference the firm was engaged in handling transportation tickets.

This is not the case, he said, as it is an established rule that only licensed and authorized offices may dispense transportation tickets on behalf of any public carrier.

While Mr. Tanner has an interest in a new travel agency, it has no direct connection with the photo supply firm.

Time to Set Policy

BACK IN 1945 THE CANADIAN government produced a White Paper on income and employment which outlined basic government economic policy for the next 12 years.

Of course, in that period, revisions had to be made as certain circumstances changed substantially from what had been foreseen at the time the White Paper was drawn up. Nevertheless, the radical change in the Canadian economy during the war years, when Canada emerged as a foremost industrial nation, was accepted as a basis for government policy and industrial growth was actively pursued.

The government of that day believed it knew where it was going and had an economic and political philosophy in which it could express its plans for the future.

From a speaker at the Canadian Tax Foundation convention in Vancouver this week, Toronto lawyer Mr. W. A. Macdonald, comes the suggestion that it is time for a Canadian government to produce something comparable to the 1945 White Paper.

Mr. Macdonald believes that Ottawa's political problems over foreign ownership of Canadian industry show that "what is now required and what cannot be honorably avoided is the making of some choices based on Ottawa's view of the future and on its political and economic philosophy."

This is not, furthermore, a task which can be relegated to royal commissions; Mr. Macdonald says, nor can it be turned over to the new Economic Council or any other body.

In fact, before any commission or council can effectively do its job, it should know where the government intends to lead the country. In the cases of two royal commissions currently in session, studying banking and taxation, Mr. Macdonald asks:

"What does the government conceive to be the major policies which will support both optimum economic growth and a vital Canadian nation? How can either of these royal commissions make relevant recommendations without knowing the stand the government takes in these areas?"

Too Heavy Demands of Office

NEWSPAPER READERS IN all parts of Canada have been shocked this week by the tragic death of Toronto's Mayor Donald Summerville. This is a sentiment shared by many to whom he was previously unknown as well as by those who were close acquaintances.

The facts are simply told. A man of only 48, a former athlete and popular civic leader who had burdened himself too heavily by conscientious application to his duties, accepted an invitation to appear briefly in a charity hockey game. Following a pile-up in front of the goal he was tending, he skated uncertainly from the ice, collapsed in the dressing-room and died within minutes from a heart attack.

It seems apparent from the reports of his crowded days as mayor

While it is often argued that royal commissions provide the facts upon which governments can base policy, there is much to be said for Mr. Macdonald's argument that this is putting the cart before the horse.

How can a royal commission answer, for instance, the question of how much social welfare is necessary and/or desirable for the country as a whole, whether or not some regulation of business is necessary in the interests of the general population, or the degree to which private ownership of certain sections of the economy should be subordinated to public ownership.

These are questions which can only be answered in terms of political philosophy and it is not enough to provide answers which are good only for a month or for a year.

Similarly with the single most important problem facing Canada, the course to be pursued on foreign investment with its implications for Canada's future as a sovereign nation, no royal commission can provide a solution. The government must provide a clear policy based on a decision as much political as economic and one which can serve as a guide until the problem has been solved.

So far, unfortunately, all Ottawa has provided on this problem is negative policy in a budget which attempted to penalize foreign investment while leaving tax "loopholes" which were intended to encourage the growth of Canadian investment in the country.

As Mr. Macdonald said in Vancouver: "This really isn't the way we should handle our economic relations with other countries, nor is it the way we wish other countries to handle their economic relations with us."

The present government has indicated its desire to free the Canadian economy from its excessive reliance on foreign capital; it has so far enunciated no political philosophy on how this is to be accomplished. Until it does so there can be no useful discussion with the other nations concerned of the fundamental matters underlying the foreign investment problems.

of Toronto that he was pushing himself beyond his physical resources.

Had he been less dedicated to his work, less in public demand, less generous with his time, Mayor Donald Summerville might still be alive — to the gratification of uncounted friends and admirers.

Because he refused to spare himself, he is lost to the people of Toronto, and the loss, as tributes have disclosed, extends far beyond the capital of Ontario.

Here is a tragic example of the toll exacted today on some men by the demands of public office. And in the tragedy resides a warning to some of them who, for the best of motives, are spending themselves too prodigally in the services they have undertaken.

'That Was the Week' Ending

"THAT WAS THE WEEK THAT was," British television's controversial and often satirically brilliant "TW3," becomes the show that isn't on December 28.

The British Broadcasting Corporation has explained that with the approach of the 1964 general election and the resultant sharper controversy over issues "the political content of the program, which has been one of its principal and most successful constituents, will clearly be more and more difficult to maintain."

So the show will bow out, but not before establishing itself as something of a phenomenon on what the trans-Atlantic viewers call "tely." It boosted its opening audience of 3.5 millions to a peak of 12 millions, though it has dropped since to nine million.

To its admirers, says one reviewer, it has offered a sharp, pungent, and amusing commentary on the follies and foibles of the British scene.

To its adverse critics it has confused petulance and bad temper with Swift's "savage indignation," and mistaken the bludgeon of dudgeon for the rapier of wit, malice for mockery, and smut for sophistication.

The house is divided, but no one questions the magnetism of this "show with a difference" to the people who watch the small screen from Lands End to John o' Groat's.

Let's Call Disney

A SCIENCE-FICTION WRITER in California has proposed a method of solving the Los Angeles traffic imbroglio. The people of that city can emerge from their problem simply by electing Walt Disney mayor, he says.

"Wouldn't most of us," asks the science fiction writer, "take it on faith that old Walt could part the waters, vanquish the vapors, still the car thunders, lead us across the dry Los Angeles River, and sell us reasonable acreage in the re-opened orange groves of Eden?"

If Disney can do that, perhaps he could come north and solve a residual problem of the un-roundabout at the intersection of Hillside, Douglas, etc.

On one of the small islands that has emerged from the diversion of some traffic flows there, a short sidewalk about 10 feet long, has been constructed. On the next island in natural progress north, there is no sidewalk. When you've done the first eight or 10 feet, there's nowhere to go—unless, perhaps, you have one of those October 31 broomsticks, a team of December 25 reindeer, or... but let's call Disney. He'll have the answer.

"For what we are about to receive..."

SIR ALEC'S FIRST MONTH

By RICHARD PURSER

Good in Public, Wobbly in House

THE NEW prime minister has been in office for a month. He has by now been observed in his new role on the hustings, on television, in person, and in Parliament. Some preliminary assessment can be made of his personal political merits.

In his previous political incarnations, Sir Alec Douglas-Home's self-effacing nature had made him an enigmatic figure, beloved to his colleagues but often regarded by outsiders with only the good-humored tolerance nowadays accorded to 14th earls.

Now that he is in the limelight and will soon lead the Conservative party into a general election, his "image" is of the utmost importance. This word "image" is going to be used constantly during the campaign, however much the writing fraternity may wish it had never been granted space in the dictionary.

Good Press Relations

Most of the public does not see Sir Alec in Parliament or on the public platform. They know only what they see on television and read in the newspapers.

Sir Alec attached great importance to developing good press relations at the outset of his new office. British prime minister do not customarily hob-nob with the general run of journalists the way leaders in the United States and Canada do. But during his by-election campaign in Scotland he deliberately behaved like a typical by-election candidate rather than like a prime minister, and within limits he was readily accessible to the press.

His attitude paid off in Britain, with immensely favorable domestic press notices. This was especially so in view of former Prime Minister's Macmillan's evident dislike of the press.

Easy Manner

However great the blandishments of the Tory establishment and the Conservative central office's hired persuaders, Sir Alec is his own best press agent. His easygoing manner, unforced naturalness and frankness could not help but win over skeptics during the campaign. His ability to mingle in crowds contrasted favorably with Mr. Macmillan's patrician stiffness among the masses and led him to be dubbed a "man of the people" although bluer-blooded than Mr. Macmillan.

Returning to London, Sir Alec made a creditable impression before a high-priced audience at the Lord Mayor's annual banquet. The next day he made his debut in Parliament. Nothing in the 24 days of success that had just passed suggested what was to happen in the House of Commons that November 12.

It was the same good-natured, easy going Sir Alec who stood up at the dispatch box to reply to an incisively worded 43-minute onslaught on government policy by Opposition Leader Harold Wilson. But the audience was different. Gone were the amateurs, the worshipping crowds of middle-aged Tory ladies from the Scottish hills. This was an audience of professionals.

Feeble

The best that can be said of Sir Alec's performance is that he never quite went under for the third time during his hour-long ordeal. Early in the noisy proceedings he fell flat with a feeble attempt to explain what he meant at the Lord Mayor's banquet when he referred to the London financial district as the source of wealth in Britain. This was meant in the sense that it was the first great trading centre, he told the House. The industrialist, inventor and worker really produce the wealth.

It was hardly a matter worth raising. In the next sentence he made a historical error, claiming that a Labor government had originally instituted the now-controversial service charges on National Health Service prescriptions.

When his error was pointed out by Mr. Wilson, he closed lamely with: "Perhaps we can turn from a review of the past." Discussing the national economy, he fell into his old habit of confusing the meaning of production and productivity. He used the theme that the government's costly new programs are "being accelerated after long preparation" to answer Labor charges of 12 years of Tory inactivity. He got into a fruitless argument about university statistics and bogged down in housing and road figures.

Desperately striving for a reply to an interjection on transport policy, he said alternative transport must "somehow" be found when rail lines are closed. At one point he committed the politician's cardinal sin of admitting that the leader of the Opposition may someday be prime minister.

Sir Alec has not developed the sensitive Parliamentary antennae such as possessed by Mr. R. A. Butler, that enable a front-bencher to handle instantly any situation in the House. He also lacks the fluent grasp of facts that enables Mr. Wilson for example, to leap up on points of detail and get at the heart of issues.

Doubtful Master

These defects may improve in time, but it is doubtful that Sir Alec will ever be a master of the House of Commons or of Mr. Wilson in that House.

If Sir Alec succeeds it may well be as "man of the people" rather than as "man of Parliament." Political observers here, fretting over the decline of Parliament, fear that in the next few months the television and front page personality of the prime minister may come to dominate the political scene to an unprecedented degree.

Letters

The Flag

I consider the letter about Canada's national flag in The Victoria Daily Times of Nov. 18, a very sensible one and coming from a resident of Britain all the more so. She suggests "the Canadian coat of arms in the top left-hand corner, instead of the present Union Jack... and that nice green maple leaves be placed on the rest of the flag. I would, though, also like to see dogwood flower."

Coming from one who, as I, was born and raised in the British army, and having five younger brothers in that terrible First World War, one from Australia, formerly from Canada, I say I am saying a lot, but I know that those brothers of mine, what's left of them, would agree with me as they valued the assistance our Canadians gave them in "The Kaiser Bill War."

A. B. MARSHALL

Let's Have An Inquiry

Your issue of Nov. 7 carried an account of a meeting of the Victoria Labor Council at which meeting a resolution was passed calling for a Royal Commission to enquire into the shooting of three union men at Resource Siding and the light penalty (fine of $100 each) imposed on the men who did the shooting.

Let us have this inquiry by all means. Let us know who organized and instigated an attack on men who were quite legally employed in minding their own business.

Let us know why ten provincial policemen could not restrain this gang of "peaceful pickets."

Let us know why men are fined $100 for protecting their persons and property from attack when the police could not do so.

Let us know why international labor skates can swagger about this country with their thugs and goon squads threatening and intimidating and beating Canadian workers who resist them.

The woodworkers who took part in this attack were probably decent Jews. The men who put them up to this attack are the guilty ones. They should carry the blame of these deaths and injuries.

The Victoria Labor Council had little to do when it passed such a resolution. Smart remarks about establishing the price of killing a man don't help. Comparing this incident to killing a moose out of season is also the measure of the man who made it.

More Christians Needed

Re the report of panel discussion, "Should Religion and Politics Mix?" All would agree where religion is exploited to usurp power as in South Viet Nam, that they should not.

Christians are often accused of being narrow. This may or may not be true, depending on your definition of either term. Many are Christians in name alone, not living the life. Others classify themselves simply because they live in a so-called Christian country. But Canada is no longer that.

As for mixing politics and religion, all would lament it. But what Canada, the whole world needs is more Christianity as written in God's Word, which most of its most vigorous critics have never thoroughly read nor studied with an open mind. As well might the member of a fraternal society, of a service club or a patriotic society be barred from politics, as to bar a Christian because he is such.

The increasingly common scandals in political circles in so many countries seem to cry out for some Christian leavening. Under such circumstances the only solution seems to be for more of God's servants, ordained or otherwise, to enter the political field.

Is a sprinkling of ministers any worse than a preponderance of lawyers, business men or other classes?

Also Helped

While reading the editorial page of The Daily Times of Nov. 18, I came upon the subtitle of "A Hand for the Handicapped."

Within its contents are mentioned three local organizations who helped make the Goodwill Enterprises' collection drive for the handicapped the most successful on record. Admitted that these groups did an excellent job, I was rather disturbed: not to find mention of the Victoria Radio Aid Citizens' Band Club.

Members of the group donated a good deal of time to help dispatch and operate radio-controlled cars which aided in the picking-up of donations.

I feel they should be recognized along with the other groups.

Zigs and Zags in East Europe's Progress Toward Freedom

By WALTER LIPPMANN

YESTERDAY, speaking of communism in Eastern Europe, I said that as the tensions have become relaxed because the fear of nuclear war is subsiding, the discipline which holds together the Eastern alliance has also become relaxed.

It is necessary, however, to be cautious about drawing conclusions from this fact. The easiest mistake to make is to suppose that a tendency in one direction, say toward more individual freedom, will develop in a straight line until countries like Poland and Hungary, for example, have as much and the same kind of freedom which exists in this country.

In actual fact, the line of development is not straight, but zigzag, and while on the whole, the direction is away from the absolute totalitarian police state, this main trend has many forward and backward movements, rather like the booms and recessions of the business cycle.

I became very aware of this when I arrived in Poland after I had been in Hungary. Quite obviously, these two neighboring Communist countries are in strikingly different phases of their development.

Hungary is buoyant with the exhilaration that comes from the opening up of a closed society. The apparatus of the police state and the apparatus of the Communist party are still there, and it is not thought safe to speak too frankly, except when walking in the open air. But the frontiers have been opened to tourists going both ways, and there has been, except in the case of Cardinal Mindszenty, a political amnesty. A fair amount of fresh air from the outside world is making the Hungarians feel better.

Coming into Warsaw after Budapest, one realizes quickly that, after the opening up, there is likely to be a pause. Since the Second World War, I have been twice before to Warsaw, most recently in 1958. Poland was then in the aftermath of a successful defence of Polish autonomy against imperial and centralizing demands from Moscow. At that time the atmosphere in Warsaw was buoyant as it is today in Budapest. It is now no longer so buoyant, and there is something that might be described as a fog of depression.

Poland is not going back to Stalinism. But, as one Communist dignitary admitted when I asked him about what had gone wrong, there is a pause. The windows are not being opened wider. Indeed, they are being closed somewhat. For said the Communist dignitary, the Poles "made such a big jump ahead in the late 1950s that now we must wait until the others catch up."

The man who said that is a leading theoretician of the Communist party. I do not think that what he said is the true explanation of the contrast today between Hungary and Poland. I think, rather, that we are confronted here with a problem which is universal—the problem of authority and liberty—the problem of how much freedom a people can enjoy without destroying authority which is needed to govern them. Or in reverse, the problem is how can they have governments with authority to govern them well and still enjoy and expand their personal freedom.

Poland had, I believe, achieved more freedom of speech and of ideas than was compatible with the kind of governing authority which a Communist planned economy requires. When you open up the windows of a closed society, the drafts bring in not only fresh air, but also infections of various kinds.

The problem is not confined to the Communist world. It is, I venture to think, a central problem in the movement of renewal and reform and modernization which was initiated by Pope John XXIII. It is likewise, I imagine, the underlying problem in our own public controversy about "conservatism" and "liberalism."

In the Communist states which are totalitarian in their original essence, the problem is now acute.

On the one hand, human flesh will no longer endure absolute authority and the sacrifices it demands; on the other hand, with unlimited freedom, the fabric of authority which is needed to govern may become unraveled and be pulled apart.

I have no doubt that, for example,

Mr. Khrushchev's personal inclination is toward liberalization and the opening of doors and of peace. But he is haunted by the continual threat of division and disunion, by the threat of a breakdown of morale and discipline. If there is too much liberty too soon in a country which has known only authoritarian rule throughout its history. It takes a very strong constitution and long habit to use unlimited liberty.

There is no use, therefore, to expect Khrushchev to move forward (as we understand the word) in a straight line. He is bound to zig and zag: to back and to fill, in the effort to conserve his authority while he inches on in the direction he knows he must go.

The European Communist countries, including Russia, are no longer absolute dictatorships which can impose the kind of sacrifice that Stalin imposed. Men like Khrushchev, Kadar and Gomulka are not despots; they are enormously powerful political bosses.

They too have their Gallup polls, though they do not publish them. They know that they have to allow enough freedom and provide enough private consumable wealth to give to their masses a sense of improvement and enough relief from poverty and regimentation to keep discontent from boiling over. Yet they have also to avoid providing so much freedom that parties can be formed and factions can come into the open and the central authority can be destroyed.

Song My Paddle No Longer Sings

WHEN the young man was here to pick up those things for the Goodwill Enterprises, he noticed your canoe," Pat told me. "He said he'd like to buy it, if it was in his price range. I said I'd tell you. I've told you."

"It needs fixing," I said to her.

"He knows that," she replied.

"Yeah?" I countered.

"Well, I don't guess I'll ever get around to fixing it and I don't think I'd use it much even if I did. Maybe somebody could get some enjoyment out of it." And we left it at that.

The canoe is a venerable old Peterborough now gathering cobwebs and grime on the rafters of my garage. Like its owner, it has responded to the passing of the years by going at the seams. A man competent with wood-working tools, and familiar with the new resins could probably seal it again and stiffen its longitudinal struts.

Sure it should be sold if someone wants to buy it. But how do you go about selling something like your own child?

I was 10 years old when I plunged my entire life's savings into the purchase of that Peterborough. I bought it from an uncle who wasn't eating very well as he put himself through dental college at Portland.

I doubt if anyone anywhere has made a more satisfying investment.

We didn't talk about status symbols in those days, but if ever a kid had one, I had in that canoe. It made me a king. It set me apart and on high. It brought me endless hours of happiness and gave me a means of exercising an ambitious imagination.

In that slender craft, "I was a Viking bold, my deeds though manifold, no skald in song has told, no saga taught thee."

In it, a part of it, a sort of living arm to the living body. I learned to angle through the rip off trail, to come barnacle-clogged to the shore rocks for the benefit of every backedly they provided. I explored. I acquired a sense of balance that would let me show off by standing on my head on the stern thwart. I threw away my leeboards because they seemed impediments when I tried to sail.

I talked to my canoe. I exhorted it when we went storm riding in summer sou'easters at the mouth of the bay.

I was never as good a canoeist as I thought I was, but I was good enough for me.

We went together to Chain Island. We skirted the Sunday-filled shore of Willows Beach. We hosted, the canoe and I, demure young maidens under moon or starlight on July and August nights when the Strait was mirror smooth. We cut flames of slashing phosphorescence in a midnight sea. And we fished, which isn't as easy as it sounds when you, sitting aft facing forward, hook a sporty coho in choppy water.

In late spring I worked on the trim hull, sanding down old varnish, renewing it with Valspar, painstakingly smoothing the surface between ribs and cross-sections on the inside.

In a fashion, we grew up together, floating through long summer afternoons on the glinting water of Foul Bay, writing a few awkward sentences in youth's sweet-scented manuscript on soft evenings.

Then we grew older and, like Omar's eastern pot, from long abstinence grew dry. We have become strangers in recent years, the canoe lying, unrepaired, on the garage rafters while I pass beneath it, scarcely noticing the patches where varnish has wrinkled and cracked like an old person's hands.

Of course I should get rid of it, if it's of any value to anyone. And yet I seem to owe it something more than that—perhaps a Norse funeral pyre, which at least would mark a dignified and sentimental parting.

Labor Scores Crushing Victory

DUNDEE, Scotland (Reuters)—Harold Wilson's Labor party today scored a convincing win in a Scottish byelection, turning a marginal seat into a massive 4,955-vote victory over the ruling Conservative party.

Labor had been expected to increase its margin and hold the seat in Dundee West but the size of its win over the Conservatives was bigger than expected.

The presence of a Scottish Nationalist in the race apparently accounted for most of the Conservative loss of votes.

Labor candidate Peter Doig received 22,449 votes for 50.56 per cent of Thursday's vote. Conservative Dr. Robert Taylor drew 17,494 for 39 per cent.

Dr. James Lees, the Scottish Nationalist, polled 3,285 votes and the Communist candidate, David Bowman, 1,170. Lees and Bowman lost their £150 ($450) deposits because they failed to poll one-eighth of the total vote.

FEWER TURN OUT

More than 71 per cent of the electorate turned out compared with almost 83 per cent for the 1959 general election when the late John Strachey, Labor, defeated Taylor 25,857 to 25,143.

Political observers said the victory was particularly impressive because Labor increased its percentage of the vote over 1959 by one per cent while the ruling

Conservatives dropped by nine per cent.

Political observers said Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home's Conservative party, which must call a general election within the next 11 months, is expected to step up its campaign to hammer home the government's domestic policies in a bid to win back the voters' support.

The party standings in the 630-seat House of Commons now year.

Conservatives and allies 359, Labor 259; Liberals 7; Independents 1; vacant 4.

Life Sentence

PARIS (Reuters)—The French State Security Court Thursday sentenced former Capt. Raymond Mura to hard labor for life for leading a Secret Army Organization commando team that murdered Algerians in Algiers last year.

UN Designates 1965 As Year Of Co-operation

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The UN General Assembly decided unanimously Thursday night to designate 1965, the 20th anniversary of the United Nations, as International Co-operation Year.

Canada, the United States and the Soviet Union supported the resolution, which calls on member countries to co-operate in all fields in 1965.

One suggested format is to devote each month to a specific problem such as public health, welfare, food or literacy. The over-all aim is to spur and publicize efforts to reduce international tension.

JFK Joint Fleet Plan Progresses

LONDON (AP)—Six European Allies have agreed in principle to man and operate a U.S. warship in a unique test of President Kennedy's plan for an international nuclear fleet.

Qualified diplomats, reporting this Thursday night, said the experiment probably will be staged next year if progress is made toward setting up the projected multinational nuclear force.

The six European governments which have indicated willingness in principle to stage the unprecedented trial are Belgium, Britain, West Germany, Greece, Italy and Turkey.

SASK. FARMERS POCKET RECORD INCOME IN '63

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan farmers will pocket a record net income in 1963 of $630,000,000—an average of $6,750 per farmer, it was learned today.

The 1963 farm net income will be almost twice as high as the 10-year average in the province of $323,000,000 and considerably higher than the 1962 figure of $504,000,000.

The $6,750 average per farmer compares with a 10-year average of $3,430 and a 1962 figure of $5,375. In the 1961 drought year the figure was $1,475 per farmer.

Farm operating and depreciation costs this year also were higher than ever before.

Parks Group Okays $500 for Roadwork

Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee Wednesday wound up the year by authorizing expenditure of $500 in a $1,200 winter works program.

The other $800 is to come from federal grants.

The work will centre on improving roads in Beaver Lake and Mount Douglas Parks, said administrator W. H. Warren.

He said there still would be $230 left from the current budget. It is the first time the committee has seen the possibility of escaping a deficit in a number of years.

Saanich Coun. Joseph Casey told the committee the appraisal of the city's 700-acre Beaver Lake property should be completed in a week or two.

A three-man committee of appraisers, appointed by city and Saanich councils, is to set a value on the property for parks purposes. The figure will be the basis for negotiations to transfer the land from Victoria to Saanich.

A letter from the Royal Canadian Golf Association suggesting the committee borrow from the Industrial Development Bank to establish a golf course in park property was received and filed.

Committee members noted a long list of grants available for golf course construction, mentioned in the letter, referred to the United States, not Canada.

YEAR IN PRISON FOR SOLDIER

Canadian Defector Court-Martialed

LONDON (CP) — Pte. Guy Bouchard of Montreal, who defected to East Germany more than four years ago, has been caught and court-martialed by the Canadian Infantry Brigade in West Germany, it was learned here Thursday.

Bouchard was sentenced earlier this month at Soest, West Germany, where he was court martialed for desertion, to one year in prison and dismissal from the army.

Bouchard, 26, was a member of the 3rd battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, serving in Germany when he left his unit Sept. 16, 1959. He was listed as a deserter the following month and his parents later had a letter from him in East Germany asking for books to help him learn a trade.

He was picked up in West Germany in October by German police in a routine check of passengers leaving a train.

He had no proper papers and was arrested.

Parr Urges Planning For 110,000 People

About 110,000 people will live in Saanich in 1981, and council is behind in providing the services they will need.

Municipal planner Antony Parr told a lands and planning committee recently that a stepped-up program of land acquisition and service provision is vital if the municipality is to cope with a more than-doubled population.

New growth rate figures came to light during preparation of a 1981 population and land use forecast for the Greater Victoria transportation study.

Areas expected to develop rapidly include Ten Mile Point, Cadboro Bay, the area around the Gordon Head university campus, and coastal regions.

"It is imperative that the committee and council appreciate the significance of a population growth shown in this forecast," Mr. Parr told the lands and planning committee.

Council should prepare "by all the means at their disposal to cater to the social, economic and physical needs of the 110,000 people who will reside in the municipality within the short period of 17 years," he said.

Speeding Charge Policy Queried

VANCOUVER (CP) — The police commission plans to investigate a policy of the police department of laying dangerous driving charges against out-of-the-province drivers caught speeding.

Commissioner George C. Robson said Thursday the commission has not yet set a date for the discussion.

The matter came to light when it was disclosed that disciplinary action was ordered against a veteran traffic officer who laid a dangerous driving charge against a visiting motorist caught speeding.

Under the British Columbia Motor Vehicle Act, police cannot arrest motorists on a simple charge of speeding. It has been disclosed that five years ago the then chief constable, the traffic superintendent and the city prosecutor agreed to lay dangerous driving charges to prevent speeders from leaving the province without paying a penalty.

A driver charged with dangerous driving can be taken to the police station and asked to post bail, usually $25.

If he leaves the province he forfeits the bail. If he appears in court the charge is usually reduced to speeding.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bulky fat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

ARRESTED in Detroit, state trooper Andy Salkovich, 32, is accused of being the bandit who held up a suburban bank Thursday and fled with $3,156. A bank teller threw a stone at the getaway car and Salkovich was apprehended after he took his dented machine to a garage to have the door repaired.

TEAMWORK PLEA HEARD BY DRUGGISTS

Communication and co-operation among all the professions concerned with health services is vitally important, Dr. Donald H. Williams told members of the South Vancouver Island Pharmacists' Association on Wednesday.

Dr. Williams, head of the department of continuing medical education of the faculty of medicine at UBC, was speaking on "The Components of the Health Team" at a meeting in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

He said the Health Sciences Centre being built at UBC recognized the need for communication and co-operation.

The centre, to be completed in four years, is comprised of the faculties of medicine, pharmacy, nursing, dentistry and allied sciences, all surrounding a model university hospital.

Prison Sentences Boosted For Loomis Car Robbers

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Appeal Court Thursday increased the sentences of three men convicted of the $500,000 robbery from the Loomis Armored Car Company in May.

Crown Prosecutor Stewart McMorran earlier in the day told the Appeal Court the sentences did not fit the crime.

The court increased the sentences of armored car driver Douglas John Brown, 35, from three to five years. It also doubled the two-year sentence of William John Grant, 31, and increased the sentence of Raymond Peterson, 33, from 18 months to 2½ years.

In his appeal, McMorran said the previous judgment of Magistrate Gordon Scott included a notation that suggested the inexperience of the three was a factor in their capture and his reason for giving them a light sentence.

"Unforeseen circumstances rather than inexperience were responsible for their capture," McMorran said. "They took every possible precaution, even sending Brown to Brazil which has no extradition treaty with Canada."

He implied they were quite experienced and should get a stiffer sentence.

"Two things went wrong, which they couldn't have foreseen," he said.

Brown was returned to the U.S. where he was arrested and sent back here, and the person with whom the other men left the suitcases of money linked them to the theft and reported the matter to police.

REDUCTION SOUGHT IN SELLING PERIOD

City Moves to Curb Fireworks

City finance committee Thursday decided against seeking a total fireworks ban.

Aldermen instead recommended council ask the legislature to amend existing legislation enabling the city to cut down the obligatory seven-day period of sale.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said this would allow the city to conform with the two-day sale period at Halloween followed by the other three municipalities without sacrificing the privilege of permitting special displays at other times of the year.

Ald. Austin Curtis told John Bean, 615 Vancouver, that only the provincial legislature could order a total fireworks ban as sought in a petition of 350 names he presented to council. (Mr. Bean told The Times he launched his petition drive after a firecracker landed inside his car through an open window.)

Ald. J. L. W. McLean supported a total ban, contending firecrackers had become too much of a nuisance to elderly persons.

"I doubt that children today are any worse with firecrackers than when we were kids," replied Mayor Wilson. "There were horses then and it was even more dangerous."

Committee recommended that city council make no changes to its present Wednesday-closing bylaw for barber shops in order to give the barbers' union an opportunity to petition the legislature for an amendment permitting individual option closing for barbers.

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady was asked for a report on feasibility of the city controlling the future use of the Heaney Carriage building in Bastion Square without the city buying it.

Ald. Curtis asked if it might be possible to ban in advance any permits for creation of a parking lot on the site or ordering preservation of any area "for aesthetic or other reasons."

City manager Dennis Young said it would be possible to prevent use of the site for parking lot but not to prevent demolition of the building.

At the mayor's suggestion, committee also agreed to discuss financial aspects with Maritime Museum officials who have asked the city to turn over the Bastion Square Courthouse for a new museum home.

Committee was told that it should also entertain proposals from any other community groups to make sure the best possible use is made of the building after it is vacated as a temporary City Hall.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Tragedy Closes Exchanges

Major stock exchanges closed today as word of the shooting of President Kennedy in Dallas flashed across the country.

At New York the stock exchange was closed at 2:10 p.m. EST, for the day on order of the board of governors. The index was off 21.16 points.

On news of the shooting of the president, stock prices began to fall and the board of governors decided to close the exchanges until further notice.

At Toronto the exchange closed at 2:27, while the Vancouver market closed down at noon, three hours ahead of its usual closing.

The New York market had reacted with a violent downturn to the first news of the president. Trading had been heavy as the market rallied from a steep decline of Thursday, but it did a rapid turnabout and prices of key stocks skidded on a broad front.

Wall Street Crash Would Rock Canadian Market

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Although the Canadian and U.S. stock markets are linked together less closely now than they were before last June's budget and the Kennedy interest equalization tax proposal in mid-July, there's little doubt but that a severe crash on Wall Street would still have an impact on Canadian markets.

It's a point worth considering since a number of American investment experts have been sounding increasingly uneasy this past week or so about the health of the stock market.

While there was a spate of criticism over the Federal Reserve Board's decision to boost stock margin requirements from 50 to 70 per cent and, after initial reaction, for a few days the market took the boost in its stride, there seems to be a change of opinion on the move.

A few people are now saying the margin boost came too late, that speculative fires were burning too strongly and that a decisive reaction could come soon. One of the more popular Wall Street market letter writers, Joseph E. Granville, has even gone so far as to tell his subscribers to "get out of the market" in order to avoid "the crash action which is increasingly indicated."

Another sign of the times is that Moody's Investors Service has added to its weekly newsletter a feature titled: "For the Speculator Only."

Admittedly, the majority of analysts are still bullish. They point to the booming economy, record corporate profits and a modest increase in capital spending forecast for next year to back up their contention that stock prices are still on the way up.

There is, however, a growing minority who feel that the market is technically weak and they point to the fact that price-earnings ratios are outstripping the improvements in corporate profits.

They also point to the highly speculative nature of much of the trading of the past month or so with investors, mesmerized by the profit potentials in stock splits such as the AT & T 2 for 1, the Xerox 5 for 1 and the CBS 2 for 1, and bidding prices up to unrealistic levels.

Also to be noted is that in spite of the excitement over a few more glamorous issues, there has also developed a generally weaker undertone to the New York market with a number of better grade stocks showing heavy declines.

At the time the FRB raised the margin requirements, total securities loans outstanding had risen to $6.9 billion, up $2.1 billion, or 43 per cent, since mid-summer. Of this amount nearly $1.8 billion was in customer accounts of brokerage houses which had increased 49 per cent.

Despite these figures, a number of brokers have been insisting that "the public" is not in the market to a great extent, that trading is largely in the hands of "professionals" and that consequently there is little to worry about.

The "Fed" quite obviously just didn't see it that way and its margin move was an attempt to minimize the harm which might be done to the small investor in the event of a crash such as the one which occurred just 18 months ago.

Tragedy For All — Pearson

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, near tears and his voice broken, today expressed the stunned sorrow of the Canadian nation at the assassination of President Kennedy.

"This is a heart-breaking tragedy for all of us," he told a stilled House of Commons.

"The world can ill afford to lose at this time of our history, a man of his courage, his wisdom and his determination to advance the cause of freedom in his own country and throughout the world," he said.

"This is a tragedy for the president's family and his people but it is a tragedy too, for all of us. No people will share more deeply in this tragedy than the people of Canada."

Opposition leader John Diefenbaker said "free men everywhere . . . will bow their heads in sorrow."

"A tribune of freedom has gone," Diefenbaker added. "Whatever our disagreements may have been during the years he stood as the embodiment of freedom not only in his own country but throughout the world."

Diefenbaker said Kennedy will be remembered for his efforts to bring about equality for all men regardless of race. He said Kennedy was endeavoring to "bring about the culmination of the dreams of Lincoln."

New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas said the House and the country had been "stunned by the news of the assassination of the young and far-seeing president of the United States."

Douglas said Kennedy was a "good friend" of Canada and that the people of this country had a high regard for him. Canadians, he added, had watched with "deep sympathy" Kennedy's efforts to bring about greater racial understanding.

Bells to Toll

A long, muffled peal of bells will be rung this evening at Christ Church Cathedral in memory of President Kennedy. The tribute by city Anglicans to the Roman Catholic president will begin at 7:30.

St. Andrew's Offers Mass

Minutes after President Kennedy died Mass was offered at St. Andrew's Cathedral in Victoria for the repose of his soul.

Father William Hill heard of the President's assassination just as he was about to celebrate the weekly Mass for students at St. Ann's Academy and St. Louis College.

He told the packed congregation of youngsters that President Kennedy had died and they joined with him in their prayers.

JFK FACED MANY CRISES IN HIS THREE YEARS

Cuban Affair Worst Moment

By The Associated Press

John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 35th President of the United States, was the first American chief executive to face the imminent possibility of nuclear war and to move to protect American interests despite the awful risk involved.

In the waning months of the second year of his term he confronted Soviet Russia's Premier Nikita Khrushchev with a demand to remove Russian nuclear missiles set up in Cuba and pointing at the United States, 90 miles away.

He ordered a naval quarantine on such offensive weapons being sent to the island nation, said ships carrying them would be turned back and called on the Russian Premier to withdraw the weapons already there.

For five days the nation and the world waited for word from Khrushchev, sworn foe of the Free World. On Sunday, Oct. 28, came intense relief. Khrushchev announced he had ordered work stopped on missile bases, said the missiles would be crated and returned to Russia and promised that the United Nations would verify the dismantling.

Although Khrushchev's retreat was interpreted as a step forward for the United States and the Free World in the Cold War, there still were trouble spots around the earth, imperiling the peace.

And as Kennedy began the second half of his first term, perplexing problems which plagued him during his first year still awaited settlement.

Unsolved was the question of West Berlin which Khrushchev sought to free of Allied occupation troops. The United States and Russia still were unable to agree on disarmament and banning of further nuclear tests. Communist penetration continued in South-east Asia. Communist China had invaded India. Latin America, poor and economically backward, was a target of propaganda from Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, avowed disciple of Khrushchev. And in Africa newly emerged nations groped their way unsteadily toward the future.

Charted New Frontiers For the Ship of State

Kennedy added "the New Frontier" to such other Democratic campaign slogans as "the New Deal" of Franklin D. Roosevelt and "the Fair Deal" of Harry S. Truman.

"The New Frontier" was the way he titled his speech accepting the nomination for President. It was, he said, "a frontier of unknown opportunities and perils at a turning point in history."

During the campaign, he likened the United States to a great ship lying at anchor. He held that this ship of state should be sailing on to "new frontiers" — with Kennedy at the helm.

At the appointed hour a sort of stern President could be seen on the television screen. Without wasting words he outlined evidence of atomic missile sites in Cuba. He put the blame squarely on Soviet Russia which had been assuring the United States it was sending only defensive weapons to the island, said Kennedy.

"This secret, swift and extraordinary build-up of Communist missiles in an area well known to have a special and historical relationship to the United States and the nations of the western hemisphere is a deliberately provocative and unjustified change in the status quo which cannot be accepted by this country, if our courage and our commitments are ever again to be trusted by either friend or foe."

He ordered a quarantine on all such offensive weapons for Cuba and said ships carrying them would be turned back.

He called on Khrushchev to withdraw weapons already there and cease preparation of missile sites. If this were not done, he said, "further action" would be taken. Aerial surveillance would continue, he added.

A week before Kennedy made his broadcast aerial surveillance had obtained evidence of missile sites ready and being prepared in Cuba. The public was not told but there were days and nights of debate and action by the Kennedy administration until the blockade decision was reached.

Military Buildup

The days following the quarantine announcement were tense. Military forces were built up in the southwest. The Organization of American States met the next day and unanimously adopted a resolution of force by force individually or collectively "to enforce the blockade. With that legal backing, Kennedy issued the proclamation to become effective at 10 a.m. the next day. Twenty-five Russian ships were reported en route to Cuba.

Meanwhile, United Nations Acting Secretary General U. Thant asked both Kennedy and Khrushchev to suspend both the arms blockade and arms shipments for two or three weeks pending negotiations. Khrushchev accepted. Washington agreed to co-operate to avoid a confrontation.

Twenty hours after the proclamation was issued a Russian ship carrying oil was intercepted. It was allowed to proceed.

Tension mounted. The Kremlin stalled. On Friday, Oct. 26, the state department called attention to the president's speech in which he said if missile site preparation continued "further action will be justified."

At 9 p.m. that night, a letter arrived from Khrushchev. Although not explicitly stated, it contained an offer to withdraw the offensive weapons under UN supervision in return for a guarantee the United States would not invade Cuba. The following day — Saturday — a second note from Russia offered to trade Cuba bases for U.S. bases in Turkey.

The United States, parrying the Turkey bid, advised Khrushchev if he was offering to remove offensive weapons for an end to the blockade and a U.S. promise not to invade Cuba, it was a deal. Khrushchev's fateful message came the next day. He agreed.

But the crisis still was unsolved. Castro, thrust in the background during the tense days, announced he would not permit UN on-the-spot inspection. A visit from U. Thant failed to budge him. Russian First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan flew to Cuba but Castro remained adamant.

Russia announced 42 medium-range missiles had been dismantled and shipped home. The U.S. Navy verified it by inspecting freighters en route from Cuba to Russia.

Treaty Signed

Two months later a treaty establishing the neutrality of Laos was signed in Geneva by a 14-nation conference. The treaty carried a protocol providing for withdrawal of foreign troops.

Kennedy hailed the accord as a "significant milestone in our efforts to maintain and further world peace." He said, "It is a heartening indication that difficult and at times seemingly insoluble international problems can in fact be solved by patient diplomacy."

Khrushchev, sounding a similar theme, suggested that other "unsettled international problems, however complicated, could be resolved in the same spirit."

As the year drew to a close there were indications, however, that Laos' coalition government of neutralist, right-wing and left-wing was frail and insecure. There were prospects of renewed fighting in the jungle country.

Fighting raged in South Vietnam where the Communist Viet Cong from the north sought to overrun the country and place it in Communist hands. U.S. military advisers tried to help the established government but they spoke of the Viet Nam involvement with the infiltrated Communist guerrillas in terms of years and millions of dollars.

In an assessment of his first year in office Kennedy told a news conference that failure to reach agreement with the Soviet Union on a nuclear test ban had been his greatest disappointment. Negotiations for a treaty to ban nuclear testing still were in progress as Kennedy began his third year as president. Russia still refused to accept on-site inspection of police underground explosions.

Tension in U.S.

The nation's first inkling came Sunday, Oct. 21. There were reports of evidence of tension in Washington, but newsmen were unable to pin down the exact cause.

On Monday it was announced Kennedy would address the na-

But the United States insisted 30 or more IL-28 jet bombers also must go and continued to demand verification.

Observers of the President noted a change in him during the second Cuban crisis. In the first he was described as inexperienced, uncertain and immensely impressed with older and more experienced advisers. In the second he was called poised and assured.

One official said "He held everyone under tight control. He issued orders like a military officer expecting to be obeyed immediately and to be challenged only on grounds of overriding disagreement."

With the Cuban crisis still simmering, West Germany Chancellor Adenauer flew to Washington to confer with Kennedy on the Berlin problem. It was the aged Adenauer's third visit to the young President and during each the Berlin issue dominated the discussions.

Kennedy inherited the Berlin problem. It had been a thorn since the end of World War II. Khrushchev called West Berlin, showplace of the Free World surrounded by Communism, a bone that must come out of the Russian throat. He threatened to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany and turn over access to West Berlin to the East German Communist regime. The East Germans, whom the Western powers did not recognize, said the city should be theirs.

Khrushchev stepped up his offensive by questioning the inviolability of Western air access to Berlin. The West insisted on its right to unrestricted use of the air corridors between West Germany and West Berlin.

The Soviets charged the United States with stirring saboteurs and spies into West Berlin for action against East Germany and other Soviet bloc nations. In replying to this charge, the White House said in a statement:

"The United States must serve a solemn warning to the Soviet Union that any interference by the Soviet government or its East German regime with free access to West Berlin for the consequences of which the Soviet government would bear full responsibility."

Throughout the spring and summer of 1962 Kennedy issued warnings to Khrushchev that the Western Allies intended to remain in West Berlin. He repeatedly asserted that the United States would stand by its pledge to defend West Berlin. As the off-year election campaign began in the United States, Khrushchev let it be known he would not raise the West Berlin issue again until after the election.

West Berlin was not Kennedy's only worry. The United States was involved with the Communists in such far off places as Laos and South Vietnam in Southeast Asia.

In May of 1962 Kennedy dispatched U.S. naval, air and land forces to the Thailand-Laos border because of a pro-Communist seizure of control of most of northern Laos. The manoeuvre was intended to demonstrate United States commitment in Thailand's defence and to place some troops closer to landlocked Laos.

Blast Released

Russia proceeded with the tests in Central Asia between September and November. Khrushchev said one blast in the series was on the plus side of 50 megatons (a 50-megaton blast is equivalent to 50 million tons of TNT).

This was in defiance of world-wide appeals not to test such a bomb because atomic explosions in the atmosphere cause radio-active fallout — small poisonous particles which can harm life if received in large doses.

The Soviet action caused a wave of angry protest and alarm over the danger to humanity that it created. The White House denounced it as a device to incite "fright and panic."

A U.S. spokesman said the country had the capacity and know-how to develop a 50-megaton bomb, but had concluded it was of questionable military value. He said Khrushchev's primary purpose was to create terror.

After Russia's renewal of nuclear detonations, Kennedy announced resumption of underground and laboratory tests by the United States. Such tests do not create the hazard of fallout.

"We have no other choice in fulfillment of the responsibilities of the United States to its own citizens and to the security of other free nations," he said.

Meanwhile, Russia announced it would hold more tests if the United States continued underground blasts or started atmospheric explosions.

The United States resumed atmospheric tests in April 1962 but only after Russia rejected an enforceable treaty prohibiting all tests. Russia promptly resumed tests in mid-summer and the United States followed with more tests in the autumn.

At home Kennedy found himself at odds with the business community and deep in the Civil Rights program.

Russia proceeded with the tests in Central Asia between September and November. Khrushchev said one blast in the series was on the plus side of 50 megatons (a 50-megaton blast is equivalent to 50 million tons of TNT).

This was in defiance of world-wide appeals not to test such a bomb because atomic explosions in the atmosphere cause radio-active fallout — small poisonous particles which can harm life if received in large doses.

The Soviet action caused a wave of angry protest and alarm over the danger to humanity that it created. The White House denounced it as a device to incite "fright and panic."

A U.S. spokesman said the country had the capacity and know-how to develop a 50-megaton bomb, but had concluded it was of questionable military value. He said Khrushchev's primary purpose was to create terror.

After Russia's renewal of nuclear detonations, Kennedy announced resumption of underground and laboratory tests by the United States. Such tests do not create the hazard of fallout.

"We have no other choice in fulfillment of the responsibilities of the United States to its own citizens and to the security of other free nations," he said.

Meanwhile, Russia announced it would hold more tests if the United States continued underground blasts or started atmospheric explosions.

Racial Strife

Twice during his first two years in office Kennedy was forced to act against mob violence in the South where integration efforts were fought.

In the spring of 1961 Negro and white groups, calling themselves Freedom Riders, sought to break down bus station racial barriers and ran into violence in Alabama. There were incidents at Anniston, Birmingham and Montgomery. At least 20 persons were beaten with fists and clubs in a bloody riot there. The rioting around the Greyhound bus station continued for nearly two hours before the white mob — numbering close to 1,000 at times — was broken up with tear gas by state and city police.

President Kennedy's brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, ordered several hundred U.S. marshals to Montgomery. Gov. John Patterson declared "qualified martial rule" and sent National Guardsmen to Montgomery. The Guardsmen with fixed bayonets scattered a howling mob that tried to overwhelm Federal marshals protecting a Negro church mass meeting.

The Governor particularly blamed the marshals for causing the outbreak at the church. He said he still admired the Kennedy administration but added that "the President and the U.S. Attorney General made a mistake in this matter."

Attorney General Kennedy declared, however, there would have been "an extremely bloody and costly riot" in Montgomery but for the presence of the marshals.

Far worse rioting — two persons were killed — occurred Sept. 30, 1962 when Negro James H. Meredith sought to register at the all-white University of Mississippi in Oxford. He finally registered with the aid of U.S. marshals and Federal troops but not before an Industry gaped when he cracked down on United States Steel for announcing a $6 a ton price increase after signing a wage agreement with the United Steelworkers Union.

The administration had been following the negotiations for a contract with much interest. It did not want one which would include a large wage increase and be an inflationary threat to the country's economic health.

A modest contract was reached and then Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg hailed it as a contribution to wage price stability.

When Roger M. Blough, president of U.S. Steel, personally advised Kennedy of the price increase, Blough touched off 72 hours of government activity which he and his colleagues could not have expected.

During that period four anti-trust investigations of the steel industry were conceived by government officials, a bill to roll back the price increase was seriously considered, legislation to impose price and wage controls on the industry was discussed, the FBI questioned newspapermen in the dawn and the defence department — biggest buyer in the nation — began to "divert" purchases away from United States Steel.

Some other steel companies followed the lead of U.S. Steel. Kennedy held a news conference.

'Nation of Spectators' Deplored by Kennedy

President Kennedy, who played touch football, golfed and sailed, upbraided the nation for failing to exercise "We are underexercised as a nation," he said. "We look instead of play, ride instead of walk."

"The sad fact is," he continued, "that it looks more and more as if our national sport is not playing at all — but watching? We have become more and more, not a nation of athletes, but a nation of spectators."

He made the remarks in accepting the fifth Gold Medal Award of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

Program Hit

A coalition of Conservative Democrats from the South and Conservative Republicans from the North thwarted the president on some of his favorite measures.

The 87th Congress rejected his proposals for federal aid to public elementary and secondary schools, health insurance for the aged under Social Security, a Cabinet Department of Urban Affairs, still controls on production of surplus farm crops and stand-by authority to initiate public works projects and reduce income taxes to combat economic recessions.

The Congress approved an increase in the minimum wage of

Power Defied

It was the biggest clash of state versus Federal power since the Civil War. The nation and the world watched tensely as Mississippi's Governor Ross Barnett sought to defy the Federal government which was determined to uphold Federal court orders admitting Meredith to the aristocratic university.

Meredith's struggle to enter "Ole Miss" began 16 months earlier. His application was rejected. The case moved back and forth between state and Federal courts. Meredith contended he had been refused because of his race. A Federal Court of Appeals upheld his contention.

Meredith made four attempts to register at the University. On the first try on the campus Barnett blocked him and invoked interposition — putting himself and the state's police between orders of the Federal court and the people of the state.

The Governor blocked a second try and Lieut. Gov. Paul B. Johnson thwarted a third. The Justice Department abandoned a fourth attempt when Federal marshals accompanying him were called back because of a possibility of violence and bloodshed.

When marshals finally escorted him to an apartment on the campus on Sunday, Sept. 30, an unruly mob of 2,500 students, townspeople and out-of-towners opened up with a barrage of rifle bullets, rocks, bottles and acid. The marshals fought back with tear gas. Meanwhile, Kennedy, who had made a fruitless appeal for order, dispatched federalized Mississippi National Guardsmen and troops to the college town.

Meredith registered the next day and began classes under the protection of marshals.

PTA PROPOSAL

Board Sought To Police Newsstands

Creation of a special board to police newsstands was proposed to the B.C. government Thursday by the Parent Teacher Federation.

A delegation from the federation met the cabinet. John Stanton, school education chairman, said the ministers appeared "interested" but gave no assurances.

The federation proposed that the board be set up under the attorney-general's department.

It would consist of a lawyer, an English professor, a librarian and a social worker.

The board would read questionable publications, and if it considered them obscene, would appeal direct to the distributor to cease circulation in the province.

Mrs. A. G. Binns, president of the federation, said this request followed complaints from local branches that children had been found with obscene literature at school.

The federation's brief said it was not trying to foster censorship.

DONE ELSEWHERE

Similar boards operate successfully in Ontario and Alberta, it said.

It would launch prosecutions under the Criminal Code where necessary, but would try first to get the distributors to voluntarily withdraw obscene books.

The federation had a number of proposals about education, chief of which was for a royal commission on education finances.

However, this apparently met with a cool cabinet reaction.

"They of course think they have got the best system in the whole world," Mr. Stanton said.

FULL-TIME MINISTER

The federation also asked for a full-time minister of education in the pupil-teacher ratio.

A request for greater efforts to encourage fluoridation of local water supplies brought a caution from Health Minister Eric Martin that because it was a controversial issue the government had to "go easy," Mr. Stanton said.

Flee Hotel Fire

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eighteen persons fled unharmed Thursday night when fire raced through the top floor of a three-storey hotel in the city's west-end. Firemen said several rooms on the third floor of the Robson Hotel were gutted.

Other parts of the building—including a ground floor grocery store—suffered considerable smoke and water damage.

MLAs FREE TO GET INFORMATION FROM DEPARTMENTS, SAYS BONNER

Fellow Socreds Disagree on Need for B.C. Ombudsman

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Thursday he had never known a member of the legislature unable to get information from a government department. He was commenting on demands for a British Columbia ombudsman—a sort of conscience of the government—who would investigate all citizens' complaints.

The New Democratic Party has long been pressing for an ombudsman, the term used in Sweden for such a man, and the Social Credit League passed a resolution two weeks ago favoring such an appointment here. Mr. Bonner said earlier this week the 52 MLAs are in effect ombudsmen. LOFFMARK DISAGREES His Vancouver-Point Grey fellow Socred member Ralph Loffmark disagrees. He said Wednesday it is difficult, particularly for opposition MLAs, to do the same job.

"The government in power, whatever the party, does not know whether a private MLA's motive in seeking information is a genuine desire to right an injustice, or an attempt to embarrass the administration," Mr. Loffmark said. Mr. Bonner replied that MLAs get answers from ministers in the House. If they didn't succeed there, he added, he had never known of an MLA having difficulty in obtaining the information from a government department. He indicated he was still cool to the ombudsman idea, pointing out there is no such demand in England or the United States. As for Mr. Loffmark—"It's good to have differences of opinion."

ON COURSES

UVIC Pair Named To Advisory Board

Two University of Victoria faculty members are on a new board to advise on academic standards and what courses will be offered at the three public universities in B.C.

Appointments to the "super senate" were announced Wednesday by Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

The two representatives chosen by Victoria University Senate are Robert T. Wallace, head of the mathematics department, and Roger J. Bishop, head of the English department.

The board is composed of three people appointed by the B.C. government, and two from each university.

The governments' choices are: Former deputy minister of education H. L. Campbell; T. Norbert Beaupre, president of Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd.; and Harry M. Evans, the education department registrar.

The two University of B.C. representatives are S. N. F. Chant, dean of the faculty of arts, and Dr. Ian McTaggart Cowan, head of the zoology department.

Only one representative has been named for Simon Fraser University, Richard E. Lester, one of the board of governors. Simon Fraser hasn't got any academic staff yet.

Mr. Peterson said it will not be possible for all universities to offer a complete range of courses.

"Much consultation and great co-operation will be required to evolve policies which are in the public interest," he added.

This work will be done by the new board.

A similar board to advise on allocation of funds to the universities is still to be appointed.

Mr. Peterson said he plans to announce it sometime before the next session of the legislature, which begins Jan. 23.

MUNICIPAL BRIEFS

Councils' Opinion Sought on Bus Study

Greater Victoria councils Thursday were asked by inter-municipal committee if they wanted to see the bus question re-opened for study.

Mayor R. B. Wilson referring to the 1967 expiry of the B.C. Hydro transit franchise asked committee "if perhaps now is the appropriate time to discuss this with the proper authorities and see where it stands."

Committee shelved a suggestion that it set up a study group and decided instead to ask the councils what they wanted.

The change followed insistence by Coun. Allan Cox of Oak Bay and Coun. Joseph Casey of Saanich; that the municipalities should refuse to take over the money-losing buses in 1967.

"I think we should start off with the idea that we haven't admitted defeat," said Coun. Cox.

He said if the municipalities stood together on that point the government would not abandon the service for fear of losing too many votes at the next election in Victoria and Vancouver areas.

"I don't think we should talk to B.C. Hydro either," said Coun. Cox. "We should discuss this directly with Premier Bennett."

Approval in principle for a $70,000 metropolitan sewer survey, to be shared by the federal, provincial and Greater Victoria civic government, was recommended by the committee on advice of the metro health board.

Inter-municipal delegates, led by Mayor Wilson and the three Reeves, expressed strong approval for the survey and asked authorization to begin negotiating with the senior government levels for financial aid.

Coun. Cox, metro health board chairman, said it was obvious a long-term study of the area's sewer needs was required in view of rapid development.

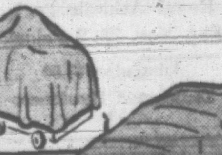

Next year's councils were urged to approve a recommendation that the four municipalities split a $2,500 grant requested by the Armed Services Centre to overcome annual operating deficits.

A holiday Friday, Dec. 27, for Greater Victoria civic staffs was recommended to keep the municipalities in line with provincial civil service precedent. The government employees will be off from Christmas Day, a Wednesday, to the following Monday.

Each of the four councils was asked to name a representative to a special group to study the present library agreements under which Victoria rents out library privileges to the other municipalities but gives them no vote on the management board.

Mayor Wilson said the study group could decide whether it wishes to invite Central Saanich and View Royal, both known to be interested in the library, to send representatives.

HERE SATURDAY

United in Action Against Firemen

Victoria United, idle for the past two weekends, comes bouncing back to the soccer scene Saturday.

United meets Vancouver Firefighters in a Pacific Coast League match at Royal Athletic Park.

Victory for United, sixth in the eight-team league, would push Victoria into a third-place tie with Firemen.

Barring last-minute changes by schedule-altering league president Bill Findler, other PCSL games on tap: Saturday, Wallace vs. Westminster Royals at Callister Park; Sunday, Columbus vs. Canadians at Callister, and North Shore United at Seattle.

BIG WEEKEND

It's a big weekend for the District League's first division contenders.

Only four points separate the top four, paired off in matches that could lead to changes up front.

Brodies meet front-running Victoria West at Topaz while Gorge, which shares second with the Bakers, plays fourth-ranked Canadian Scottish at Reynolds Road.

Brodies are undefeated since they lost a 2-1 decision to Scottish in the first match of the season. Since then, they have won five—last three in a row—and tied four to move to within a point of the leaders.

WESTS UNDEFEATED

West, going into Sunday's match, stand as the only undefeated team in the eight-team first division.

In other matches Sunday, Esquimalt and Kickers pair off at Central Park while Price and Smith face winless Eddy's at Heywood Avenue Park.

A full schedule of games is on tap in the second division. Following are the top scorers in the District and Pacific Coast Leagues:

District League	Goals
Ced Robb, Gorge	10
Sto McFarlane, Vic West	9
Maurice Bunyan, Esquimalt	8
Alan Stewart, Esquimalt	7
Ted Smith, Brodies	6
Alan Metcalf, Wests	5

Ban Lifted For Golfer

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — An ordinance banning Indians from staying in the Orange Free State for more than 24 hours was lifted Thursday to enable Sewankambo (Papua) Sewankambo to compete in the South African Open golf tournament.

Rangers' Plante Out of Hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — Jacques Plante, masked goalie of New York Rangers in the National Hockey League, was released from hospital Thursday and is expected to play Sunday.

He suffered a severe bruise of the left shoulder joint last Sunday.

Fort Garry Lions need just one more thing to be able to lay claim to the unofficial title of the best juvenile football club in Canada.

That item is a victory over the defending champion Nanaimo Redmen in the fourth annual "Little Grey Cup" game next Friday night at Royal Athletic Park.

Lions, husky, fast and confident, took a big step toward their goal last Sunday at Winnipeg. They blazed from behind for a 28-16 win over Point Claire Avengers, the Quebec kings, in the first east-west juvenile gridiron encounter.

Depending more on a powerful running game than on passing, Lions cut an impressive swath through the five-team Manitoba League this season, finishing with the title and seven players on the all-star team.

REDMEN ROUGH

Despite their fine record, there seems little chance of coach Gary Hobson's Lions being tempted into planning for an easy night against Nanaimo.

Redmen last year gave Vancouver Island its first win in the annual series by nipping Winnipeg's West End Rams, 7-6, on a sudden Athletic Park field.

Star for the Redmen of Ed Bourke was Doug White, a punting and passing expert who has since grown out of the juvenile ranks and been replaced by Kent Yaniew.

MATSON A STANDOUT

However, White's departure was the only major manpower loss suffered by the Nanaimo club and the more mature Redmen now have perhaps more all-around strength than a year ago.

They lost only once this year, going down, 22-15, to Victoria Vampires in the last game of the Island final. But a healthy lead acquired in the opener of the two-game playoff carried Redmen to a 54-41 triumph and the Island crown.

Win or lose, Al Matson, Nanaimo's standout halfback, may pick up an award at the Little Grey Cup clash. Matson, fullback Darrell Thom of Vampires and Oak Bay fullback John Giles are candidates for the Mayo Trophy, which goes to the most valuable player in the Island league.

Winner will be announced during the half-time intermission and the trophy will be presented by Kenny Floen, quarterback of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who will be in Victoria for the game.

DETROIT (AP) — William Clay Ford was expected to become the new owner of Detroit Lions today.

Ford's $6,000,000 offer to purchase the National Football League club will be approved at a stockholders meeting, according to all advance reports.

The 38-year-old son of the automobile family, who is president of the club, made his surprise offer Oct. 15.

Since then, the Lions board of directors has recommended acceptance to the 144 stockholders.

George Gibson, Al Kay and Ted Martin complete the directorate.

Does Grey Cup Help Business?

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP)—With football fans ready to pour into the city by train and plane for the Grey Cup football festival one would expect merchants to be gleefully strengthening digit fingers for hard work at the cash registers.

Not necessarily so. In fact, a few merchants would just as soon the fans, football game, cup and festival would stay somewhere east of the Rockies.

The question, what does Grey Cup festival mean to the business community brings more than one answer.

Hotels, eateries, cocktail bars, night clubs, U-drives, and taxis expect to make nothing but money. Some stores expect to reap a minor bonanza.

But the bulk of the merchandising community sees, on the short-term outlook, possible loss of business.

Most agree that on the long haul the entire community must benefit from the continent-wide publicity of the Canadian football championship.

In a survey conducted after the 1960 Grey Cup here 15 per cent of the businesses answering said business increased. Fifty-six per cent said it decreased and 29 per cent said there was no change.

Forty-nine per cent said there was material value to the business community by having the Grey Cup game here. Forty-eight per cent said there was none and three per cent had no answer or were doubtful.

CANCEL PARADE

Comments ranged from "great stimulus to business at slack time of year" to "keep it in east or cancel parade and hold game on Saturday night."

Reg Ross, general manager of the Vancouver Board of Trade, says that while the accommodation, service, and entertainment industries get all the business they can handle, the fans have little time for shopping.

He says there will be some souvenir buying and most of the 100 floats in the Grey Cup parade will be built here. But the downtown stores can't expect much business.

However, he sees long-term benefits from continent-wide telecasting of the championship game and the news stories that will flow out of Vancouver. And the out-of-town fans will carry a message home about the city and they and their friends may visit here again in the summer.

He says one often-overlooked benefit to the city is the community spirit the festival engenders.

Roy Hurst, manager of the British Columbia branch of the Retail Merchants' Association, says the fans do not come here to shop.

Harold Merilees, head of the city's visitors bureau, disagrees. He says it is doubtful that any fan will spend much less than $100 a day.

He says it is the same story the world over—visitors spend money on presents for their families and souvenirs. The festival was a long-term benefit to the whole province. The "miracle mile" race of the 1954 British Empire Games here focussed the attention of the whole world on the city.

Waterfowl hunters are reminded by Earle C. Westwood, minister of conservation and recreation, that the season on snow geese in game management areas 2, 3 and 4 was closed Nov. 11 and will not reopen until Jan. 18.

Season on snow geese on Vancouver Island continues until Jan. 15.

UNBEATEN PERSOL ...

Big Jump for Punching Clerk

NEW YORK (AP)—Eleven months ago Johnny Persol turned pro and collected $50 for his first fight. Tonight the unbeaten 22-year-old Brooklyn shipping clerk will earn $4,000 when he takes on light heavyweight contender Allen Thomas of Chicago in a Madison Square Garden 10-rounder.

It's a big jump for one who has had only nine pro fights and never has gone beyond eight rounds. Undeaten in 15 amateur bouts and winner of the National Golden Gloves crown, Persol has a 9-0 record, including three knockouts.

GETS BIG CHANCE

Persol got his big chance Wednesday when the New York State Athletic Commission refused to permit Mauro Mina to box Thomas when it learned the Peruvian contender had undergone eye surgery for a detached retina in March.

Speedy Scot Picked

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Speedy Scot, fastest three-year-old trotter of all time, has been voted Harness Horse of the Year in a poll conducted by the U.S. Trotting Association in co-operation with the U.S. harness writers.

"My guy is ready," said Persol's manager, Gil Clancy, to matchmaker Teddy Brenner when he learned of the break in the card. "Give him a shot, he'll do okay."

So Brenner agreed and Persol was signed. Thomas, a pro three years and now under guidance of former light heavyweight champion Archie Moore, is a 4-1 favorite.

He also is 22. Thomas' record is 19-2-1, including 11 knockouts.

Scoring will be by the rounds system.

Trustee Seats Go Begging In Rural Areas

Ratepayer apathy toward school board elections was hit today by representatives of Victoria's two rural districts which have only four candidates for seven vacancies.

Nomination deadline is only three days away everywhere but in Victoria city, where filing date is a week later.

"There have been acclamations—and sometimes appointments—for so long, I can't remember when we last had some real competition," said Sooke district '62 Secretary L. W. Wheelodon.

In that district, incumbents John Williams, chairman; Fred Boulter and E. J. Bartanus are expected to run, but Russel L. Heathman is through.

No one else has expressed interest in the role of school trustee, Mr. Wheelodon said.

In Saanich district '63 only the chairman, Mrs. E. P. Thomas, has shown willingness to run for the post again.

STEPPING DOWN

Both Dr. Robert Scofield, for Central Saanich, and Capt. John Rowton, North Saanich, are stepping down this year.

Capt. Rowton said the uncertainty of Sidney boundary, which may be extended, could disqualify him in mid-term. If he were re-elected.

Greater Victoria will have four vacancies on its board, one of them unsought so far.

This is David Logan's seat, one of four representing the city proper. John Porteous, also for Victoria, will run again, and chairman Mrs. A. B. Thompson, for Saanich, and Peter Bunn, Oak Bay, also will file papers.

WINTER JOB OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

The winter employment picture in Victoria looks brighter today than it has for the past few years.

On file at the National Employment Service are the names of 3,700 unemployed, a figure that is far from alarming. Included in this number are 400 university students wanting part-time work.

When the winter employment campaign committee met on Thursday it decided to continue with the present program of promoting winter works and to shelve a crash program until such time as unemployment showed signs of becoming critical.

The winter works bonus from the federal government is creating a healthy situation in the building industry and this healthy condition in itself gives an impetus towards maintaining the present high level of employment.

Young Tories Demand Secret Vote on Dief

VANCOUVER (CP)—The youth wing of the Progressive Conservative party has asked that John Diefenbaker's leadership be put to a secret vote at the party's next convention.

Carl Mooers, national president of the 14,000-member Young Conservative movement, said here Thursday that his group has submitted its demand for the secret ballot to the party's senior council.

"It is well known there are factions within the party that oppose Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership," Mr. Mooers said. "The only way to clear the air and achieve unity is to allow the party membership express their wishes in a secret vote."

Mr. Mooers said the usual vote of confidence accorded the party leader at a convention would be completely inadequate.

"Usually a prominent member of the party proposes a vote of confidence in the leader and the delegates signify their support with a standing ovation. When the applause starts people get carried away and join in. Even a seconder isn't usually necessary."

"The Unitarian church is the church where the religious quest will not conflict with the others, because each man is free to believe what his own reason, conscience and experience afford."

Rev. Peter S. Raible of Seattle, executive secretary of the Pacific Northwest district of the Unitarian Universalist Association, officially granted the church status at Thursday night's meeting in the Empress Hotel.

PUBS. WORSE THAN CARS —GAGLARDI

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi said Thursday mass motor-vehicle testing would be a waste of money.

He said that if B.C. wants to cut down on traffic accidents it might better close down beer parlors.

Only about 1 per cent of traffic deaths are caused by mechanical failures to automobiles, Mr. Gagliardi said.

A mobile clinic to test cars is under study by the motor-vehicles branch.

MEDICAL SUPPLIES WAREHOUSE

Pocket Hospital for CD Planned Near Sooke

Storage of B.C.'s first packaged 200-bed emergency hospital is planned by civil defence in the Sooke-Port Renfrew area within the fiscal year.

Provincial co-ordinator James Lister told Vancouver Island Hospital Disaster Institute Thursday it is hoped to build the first medical supplies warehouse "outside the Greater Victoria area," which Victoria co-ordinator J. D. Somerville said is near Sooke.

The plan is part of a nationwide program for the pre-positioning of medical supplies close to areas where they could most likely be expected to be required in the event of major disaster.

He said he was reasonably sure B.C. leads the country in this, having already placed supplies in some federal buildings and is renting other depots.

Other "packaged" units expected to come in the near future include emergency health clinics and laboratories.

Mr. Lister said new hospitals construction is planned to include basement storage of medical supplies provided by the senior government.

In the case of the emergency hospital unit, components will be crated and packed in convenient sizes for immediate shipment to a major disaster area.

Fully stored, the hospital requires only 8,000 cubic feet of space, or about the volume of the average five-room house.

Island MP Knocks Fish Treaty Change

OTTAWA (CP)—Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) He quoted correspondence indicating the treaty had been amended May 8 this year on the word of a top fisheries department official given orally. Japan fishing for halibut and herring in previously restricted areas off the British Columbia coast, without any official notification to the House of Commons.

Mr. Barnett said that under the international North Pacific Fisheries Convention, Canada, the United States and Japan had agreed to restrict fishing in certain areas.

This was an international treaty, he said, and while the cabinet may have power to make amendments to it, it should be required to table official documents.

DC-9 Purchase Sets Off Row In Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson announced in the Commons today Trans-Canada Air Lines will buy six Douglas DC-9 jet aircraft, and touched off a stormy shouting match with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

Mr. Pearson read a lengthy statement to the House about TCA's choice of the Douglas aircraft, the prospective workload for the Canadian Limited plant in Montreal, and the retention of TCA turboprop overhaul facilities in Winnipeg. Parts of the DC-9 are to be made by de Havilland Aircraft Company in Toronto.

The DC-9 has two rear-mounted jet engines and will carry 70 passengers at speeds of better than 500 miles an hour.

'Entirely Inaccurate'

Both men stood, facing each other, until Mr. Diefenbaker gave way. Mr. Pearson said the opposition leader was "entirely inaccurate." Mr. Diefenbaker said that was "simply an interruption to cause a detour."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government's support of TCA's decision to buy the DC-9 indicated a cabinet split on the subject "has been resolved in favor of those who represent Ontario constituencies."

"The ruddiness of the face of the prime minister is understandable in all the circumstances," he added.

The government's move was supported by New Democratic Party Leader Douglas and Social Credit Leader Thompson.

Credit Leader Real Caouette said the announcement that the order would go to the Toronto plant was "a dose of castor oil" which Quebec would have to take, and that it was accompanied by "a small teaspoon of sugar" for Winnipeg in the decision to continue turbo-prop overhaul work there.

Quebec, which had an opportunity to build the French Sud-Aviation Caravelle near Montreal suffers from chronic unemployment which the government should tackle forthrightly, Mr. Caouette added.

Mr. Pearson said TCA's choice of the DC-9 was made after a thorough technical and economic study of five different medium-range jets, "and a thorough review by the government disclosed no reason for directing TCA to reconsider this decision."

TCA eventually plans to buy 30 medium-range jet aircraft to replace its Viscount and Vanguard turboprop fleet. These would be worth about $24,000,000.

'Death Blow' To Secreds In Quebec

VANCOUVER (CP)—Leon Balcer said Thursday many separatist spokesmen are inflammatory, excited and full of exaggeration.

The member of Parliament for Trois Rivières, Que., and former Conservative transport minister said the problems of Canada's two cultures can be worked out through goodwill and good statesmanship by moderates on both sides.

He said in an interview Maurice Lamontagne, president of the privy council, was wrong when he said here recently Quebec will break away from Canada if French-speaking intellectuals and businessmen don't get more say in running the country.

Mr. Lamontagne was a "great deal too pessimistic about the future... and not many people in Quebec agree with him."

Real Caouette, leader of Quebec's Creditistes, was one of the separatists who now were "discounted demagogues."

He said Mr. Caouette's separation from the national Social Credit Party was a death blow to Social Credit in Quebec.

"Nobody takes him or the Social Crediters seriously any more in our province. They are slipping more every day. They won't be a real factor in the next federal election."

Father Runs Amok, Killing Four, Self

TRUMANN, Ark. (AP) — A farmer apparently beset with family troubles shot four persons to death late Thursday night then killed himself in his modest frame house near this northeast Arkansas cotton town.

Sheriff Ray Holmes said Sammy Penter, 34, killed his wife, Juanita, 35, his step-daughter, Delinda Gairhan, 6, his mother-in-law, Mrs. W. J. Byrd, 63, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Jimmy Moon, 31.

Mrs. Moon's husband is a cousin of Los Angeles Dodger baseball player Wally Moon.

Police found an incoherent note.

The killings began at 10 p.m., Holmes estimated, and Penter put a .22-calibre pistol under his chin and ended his life shortly after midnight.

Holmes said Penter also had marked his father-in-law, W. J. Byrd, for death, and had called Byrd to the house. But Byrd brought two Trumann City policemen. They opened the door, saw the bodies, heard the safety catch on the rifle click, and ran.

$3½ Million Award Cut To $550,000

NEW YORK (AP) — An appellate court has reduced to $550,000 a $3,500,000 libel award to radio commentator John Henry Faulk and ordered a new trial of the case if he refuses to go along with the cut.

Faulk won the big libel judgment from a state Supreme Court jury in 1962. The award was against Aware, Inc., its founder and director, Vincent W. Hartnett, and the late Laurence A. Johnson, a supermarket operator from upstate New York.

The jury brought in a verdict of $1,000,000 compensatory damages against all three for falsely connecting Faulk with Communist activities and ruining his career. An additional $1,250,000 in punitive damages was levied against Hartnett and Aware, an organization describing itself as anti-Communist.

The appellate division of the court in a unanimous five-man decision cut the compensatory damages to $400,000 and punitive damages to $100,000 against Hartnett and $50,000 against Aware.

Special Tax Levy Proposed To Buy Recreational Areas

MEETING SET ON POLICE STATION VOTE

City council will hold a special meeting Tuesday to decide whether it will put a money bylaw before ratepayers at the Dec. 12 election for reconstruction of the police station.

Mayor R. B. Wilson, chairman of police commission, said cost estimates for the proposed work are not firm yet and he could not indicate the probable amount of the bylaw immediately.

The work would involve some addition to the building but most of the reconstruction would cover changing the interior layout of the existing station.

Plans for the project were examined by the commission at a closed meeting Thursday. The council meeting was called quickly to meet a statutory deadline of Nov. 28 for a decision to put the question to ratepayers.

'Observe Rules Of Justice' Magistrate Told

Courtroom Hassle Over Vet's Case

Magistrate J. A. Byers was accused in court today of "not observing what should be the rules of justice" in a theft case.

W. H. M. Haldane, QC, also reminded the magistrate at one point in their courtroom hassle:

"You occupy a judicial position and ... get paid for it."

The argument ended with the magistrate telling Mr. Haldane, "I don't wish to be dictated to by you."

Mr. Haldane was defending a war veteran charged with theft of groceries from Woodward's Store.

INCONVENIENT

Magistrate Byers said he didn't want to take a plea because it would entail him hearing the case and this would be inconvenient for him. He is sitting temporarily in police court while Magistrate William Ostler is on holidays.

Mr. Haldane said, "There is such a thing as inconvenience of counsel."

"Is your convenience any greater than mine?" asked the magistrate.

Mr. Haldane told him that he gets paid for his job "... but I don't; only expenses."

Mr. Haldane said he would present documents showing why the case should be withdrawn and this did not involve the necessity for the magistrate to take a plea.

WOULDN'T LOOK

But Magistrate Byers refused to look at the papers because, he said, there was no evidence of their authenticity.

Mr. Haldane then said the magistrate was not observing the rules of justice.

"You said you'd hear me. If you don't want to, well and good."

"These remarks I'll befit you," Magistrate Byers told Mr. Haldane. "I am sure, on reflection, you will realize you don't mean them."

Magistrate Byers said withdrawal of the case rests with the crown prosecutor and the court has nothing to do with it.

Mr. Haldane then asked the court reporter to note in the transcript that the magistrate refused to see documents in the case.

The documents he wanted to show the court included a letter from Woodward's agreeing to withdraw the charge, subject to the approval of the crown prosecutor and the court.

Other documents, from the Veterans' Department, showed the defendant suffers a 71-per cent disability.

The case was adjourned to Dec. 2 when Magistrate Ostler will be back on the bench.

Joint Move Asked On Saanich Lands

All Greater Victoria councils should get together and levy a special half-mill tax annually to grubstake a land-buying operation aimed at preserving some public recreational areas in the Saanich peninsula, a prominent businessman said today.

H. R. Stephen, former president of the Chamber of Commerce and the Greater Victoria Community Welfare Council, made the proposal in a lengthy and detailed report to the chamber's board of directors.

He warned that unless action is taken now to preserve some green areas, the tide of subdivision development will engulf the peninsula and forever ruin this area's natural amenities and chief attraction.

Mr. Stephen calculated that the half-mill levy in the four municipalities would raise about $100,000 each year and he was sure this could be boosted to $125,000 with an application to the provincial government for assistance.

subdivision development will engulf the peninsula and forever ruin this area's natural amenities and chief attraction.

Mr. Stephen said the simplest and logical method of ensuring the area's future needs are met would be amalgamation of the present fragmented municipal jurisdictions.

But he pointed out this may not be accomplished for years, if ever, and meanwhile urban sprawl and short-sighted policies are wasting away the beauties and natural gifts of the area which set it apart from all other communities now.

He pointed out that although Central Saanich council is aware of the erosion of precious recreational assets, it could not be expected to undertake the heavy financial burden on Greater Victoria's behalf.

Mayor R. B. Wilson's immediate reaction was favorable. He said he hoped Mr. Stephen's ideas would receive sympathetic consideration "because they provide a possible means of preserving this area's amenities."

"The time is arriving when we must take a positive stand on this question of area development. I believe we must stop fooling around and dragging our feet or it will be too late."

Spear Champ Off Team; Spat Blamed

A local personality clash has put the North American underwater spear-fishing champion out of next month's world competition in Brazil, his wife charged today.

Allan Hook, 166 Hutchinson, won the title in Seattle Aug. 25 against competition from all parts of North America.

But he is not one of the three Vancouver Island divers who have been named the Canadian team to compete in Brazil Dec. 5 and 6.

Mr. Hook, who could not be contacted today, was not notified by the president of the Vancouver Island Skin Divers Council who the team members were to be, his wife told the Times.

"GETTING BACK"

"Allan and Dave MacGregor, the president, don't see eye to eye and this is just Dave's way of getting back at him."

"He has decided Allan is not on the team."

"Allan hasn't resigned, but they just don't get along."

"The fact that Allan isn't going is the fault of the president of the council—Dave MacGregor."

Mr. Hook pulled in 98.13 pounds of fish at the Seattle competition, more than 15 pounds more than his nearest rival, and he also speared the biggest fish, a 12-pounder.

Chosen for the Canadian team are Ray Linden, of Victoria, and Ken Stryan and Armand Paquette from the Alberni area.

TOP CANADIANS

Mr. Linden and Mr. Stryan, with Mr. Hook, placed fifth overall in team standings at Seattle, and were the top Canadian team.

Open House Set On U.S. Vessel

Weekend visitor to Esquimalt Harbor is the United States destroyer Charles Berry, which arrived today and will leave at 8 a.m. Monday.

The San Diego-based ship will hold an open house from 1:30 to 4 p.m. Saturday. She will be berthed at HMC Dockyard.

Lieut. Boyd broke his silence on what the admiral told him in private after Adm. Landymore, now visiting Ottawa, was reported as saying it could be made public.

He told his association that he and his commanding officer, Cmdr. E. J. Semmens, were called in to the admiral's office to find Reeve Wurtelle there.

"Reeve Wurtelle told the admiral he wanted the attacks I had been making against him in the press to cease," Lieut. Boyd said.

"The admiral heard what Reeve Wurtelle had to say and what I had to say."

"He indicated no action to Reeve Wurtelle in my presence."

"After Reeve Wurtelle left, the admiral completely rejected the reeve's (request) and told me he was not going to interfere, that it was my right to participate in municipal affairs."

"The admiral personally advised me it might be better not to be so prominent in the campaign."

Reeve Wurtelle told his council that he denied the charge but it decided to look into the matter further before dealing with the motion of censure.

Arthur Mayse

It is a disconcerting experience, let me tell you, to open an oven door and find a face staring out, but around our house we've grown used to that sort of thing this last week or two. So have other parents whose grade 12 hopefuls take art at Oak Bay High from instructor Bill West.

These young people shaped, pasted and cooked the masks for The Birds, the hep and sassy remake of an Aristophanes comedy with which University of Victoria's smart-Players' Club is currently tickling sellout audiences at its theatre-in-the-swamp.

Like many another school project, this of the masks soon shifted from workshop to kitchen. Our mask consumed several editions of the Times, a quart of glue so potent that one splash of it anchored passersby to the linoleum, and enough cotton sheeting to sail a dinghy.

Having gone the route with the masks—two, since the yearner couldn't get into the first without shrinking his head—it seemed only logical to see the play.

No doubt the university has on its someday list a proper theatre. Meanwhile, the Players' Club manages cleverly with a converted army hut.

In spite of tiered seats, revolving stage and some fancy lumage, there remained an eerie familiarity about the surroundings.

Here was where the orphanage cots once stood in geometric rows, blanket-corners squared against in-corners. Here men worked on belts and webbing with Blanco, wrote letters and played their poorly black-jack before lights out.

But no birds. The soldiers were long gone when the birds took over.

It was a good play, and my pleasure in it was heightened by the presence beside me of Eric Martin, our outspoken Social Credit minister of health.

With a son in the cast, Mr. Martin was torn between paternal pride, and anguish when his party came in for various potshots.

Only once, though, did he rebel.

"They should not," he growled, "mention Casquette and Social Credit in the same breath!"

EDWARD LUM

Motel Owner To Oppose Reeve Murphy

Two new candidates—one for reeve, one for councillor—have entered the Saanich municipal election race.

Motel owner and greenhouse operator Edward Lum, says he will contest the reeveship against incumbent Stanley Murphy.

And Royal Oak Pharmacy owner Doug Crosby told the Times he has his nomination papers ready, but has not filed them yet.

"People want more attention given their affairs," says Mr. Lum, an unsuccessful Social Credit candidate in the April 8 federal election.

"You can't run a $5,000,000 corporation from behind a school desk."

AFTER SCHOOL

"Engineers and office staff are there during the day, and the present reeve cannot attend to the business ... until after school hours."

"If elected, I will spend as much time as necessary, even full time."

"It is about time Saanich had a business approach to running the affairs of the municipality."

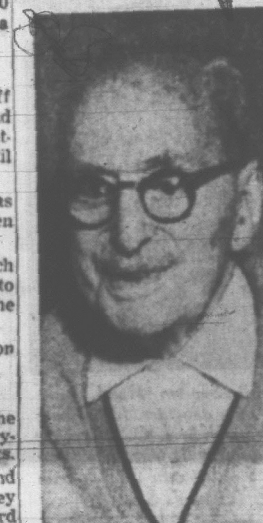

He added that amalgamation is "a dead issue."

SIX FOR THREE

Mr. Crosby's entry into the race makes six candidates trying for three council seats.

Incumbents Hugh Curtis and Gregory Cook have said they will run again, and a third seat—that of Coun. Robert Ostler who has moved to Powell River—is also open.

Ronald Weir, William Mattick and Lionel Speller, are the three other candidates.

VETERAN OF THE RIEL REBELLION, 1885 and the First World War, William H. Haldane is celebrating his 100th birthday today with his daughter, Mrs. J. C. Burbridge, 9290 Ardmore, and son, Percy Haldane, 580 Meldrum, Mr. Haldane was born in 1863 in Capetown, South Africa, and farmed for many years on the prairies. He went overseas with the First Canadian Pioneer. Since retirement he has made his home at Deep Cove.

Little Damage To Navy Ship In Grounding

The naval auxiliary vessel CNAV Laymore was hauled out on the marine ways at Yarrow's Ltd. today for repairs to slight damage suffered in a grounding Thursday night.

She went aground on an island near Ten Mile Point while returning from the Prince Rupert area, where she was laying practice mines for RCN minesweepers.

A suddenly freshening wind and a good tide enabled the Laymore's skipper, Capt. Jean Francois, to work the ship off under her own power, and she reached HMC Dockyard at 12:15 a.m. today.

Preliminary survey by divers indicated she has suffered minor damage to one section of her hull.

Unions Ready To Negotiate

Boilermakers and shipwrights may hold discussions on their work jurisdiction dispute at Yarrow's shipyards, it was indicated today.

A Yarrow's spokesman said Boilermakers' Union business manager James McConachy had indicated the union's willingness to co-operate in talks with the shipwrights.

Arbitration hearings which followed a boilermakers' walk-out at Yarrow's Oct. 10 broke down because of the involvement of a third, unrepresented party—the shipwrights.

Santa Season Starts Saturday With City Parade

Mounted units, bands, majorettes, clowns and animal figures will be featured.

Esquimalt has loaned its Puffing Billy Train—renamed the Candy Cane Special—and the YMCA has provided 24 members who will relieve Joyce's wearing the clown and animal costumes.

Cost of the parade is estimated at around $3,000, of which the Joyce's are contributing $1,500.

The unemployed represent 5 per cent of the province's labor force, compared with 8.8 per cent at the same time in 1962.

The total work force is 625,000.

DEAR ABBY . . .

It's Still Dangerous!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a 15-year-old son who sneaks out to smoke. He has admitted it. But he says he doesn't smoke cigarettes; he smokes a pipe because it isn't the tobacco that causes lung cancer, it's the paper. He said his biology teacher proved to the class that this was true by burning the tobacco through a filter and then burning the paper through a filter. The tobacco filter came out clear, while the paper stained the filter. Is this true? Thank you.

SMOKER'S MOM.
DEAR MOM: No! I think your son's biology teacher has been watching too many commercials. Or your son is having "pipe" dreams.
DEAR ABBY: Has a marriage ever worked out when the man was once married to his second wife's sister? That's my problem now. My sister and "L" were married for five years. She was 22 and "L" was 23. They had two darling children. "L" caught my sister running around on him and, after giving her several chances, he got fed up and divorced her. His mother is raising the children. "L" and I have been seeing each other for three months and, Abby, we are terribly in love and want to get married. When I told my parents, they hit the ceiling and said it would never work. My sister keeps running him down. Abby, he is a fine man and I love him. I am 21 and he is 29. Can this marriage work?

IN LOVE.
DEAR IN LOVE: Certainly. But prepare to choose between "L" and your family.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were in a downtown office building yesterday. We got into a very crowded elevator. I couldn't get my arm up to reach my hat, so I just left it on. When it came time to get off I was near the elevator door, so I just stepped out ahead of the others, not noticing if I got out ahead of any ladies or not. My wife chewed me out all the way on both counts, saying it was time I learned some manners. Well, Abby? If you're going to stick up for the women again, please toss this in the waste basket.

STAN.
DEAR STAN: Your letter is going into the newspaper—not into the waste basket! You were right on both counts! Common sense always precedes rule-of-thumb etiquette.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BIG-HEARTED AL": Quit worrying. Worry is the interest you pay on a loan you'll probably never have to make.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Wedding in Church of Our Lord

Baskets of autumn-toned chrysanthemums were placed in the Church of Our Lord, Thursday evening, for the marriage of Hazel Ivy Orr and William Laurence Burt.

Bishop D. A. G. Rankin heard the wedding vows. J. Ingram Smith was organist. Parents of the couple are the late Mr. and Mrs. George L. M. Orr of Victoria and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley W. Burt of Gibsons, B.C.

Mr. Peter Cairns gave his sister-in-law in marriage. She wore a short wedding dress of white Italian knit, with scooped neckline cut out in points to show mesh insets. Her white feathered hat was veiled in tulle touched with pearls, and she wore a gold tocket that had belonged to her great-grandmother. White roses and feathered chrysanthemums were in her bouquet.

Mrs. Cairns, as matron of honor, wore a pink Italian knit dress with pink feathered chrysanthemums. Stanley Burt, Vancouver, stood with his brother as best man. Kenneth MacKay was the usher.

A dinner reception was held in the Union Club where a three-tier cake with pink and white candles and flowers, centred the bride's table. Thomas W. MacKenzie proposed the toast.

The newlyweds will sail in the S.S. Orsova for a honeymoon in Hawaii. For her going-away ensemble the bride chose a blue Italian knit suit with charcoal trim, fur felt hat in matching shade of blue with charcoal velvet trim.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Burt will live at 2455 Cardigan Road.

Partiality Toward Female Sex Starts Protest Furore

BOMBAY (CP)—Some 15,000 male stenographers working in government offices and commercial establishments here have threatened to demonstrate to prevent what they call "official partiality towards the fair sex."

The furore is over a move by the state-owned Western Railway to recruit a women stenographer to become confidential assistant to its general manager.

Angry letters have been appearing in newspapers denouncing the proposed recruitment as "an insult to male stenographers," "a violation of the fundamental rights embodied in the constitution" and "an invitation to anarchy in government offices."

Up to now, the post of confidential assistant to the railway chief has been held by a male. The signal for the revolt was provided when the Western Railway administration placed advertisements in several newspapers calling for application from women candidates to fill the vacancy.

No Good Cook Can Afford To Be Without This Book

By PENNY SAVER

A well-known cook book, which has become the "Mrs. Beaton" of the North American housewife, has just arrived in town in a new disguise! It's magnificently presented and I venture to guess that the good cooks of Victoria will be rushing for the new edition. It is so wide in scope that it covers any dilemma a cook could be faced with, whether it's preparing a dish for 25 for the church bazaar or serving meals that an overweight family demand be interesting although calorie-shy.

With this book at hand, you need never worry about what wines to serve and how. A complete chapter is devoted to transforming you into a wine connoisseur.

And, if you've ever envied European chefs their ability to transform a Cindarella of a dish into a gourmet's bait, forget the "green eye" and read this book's chapter on sauces. With this as your guide, you'll rate raves from your family and their friends. This chef-creator sells at $7.95.

Like most women, I'm trying to do my Christmas baking early, hoping that when the final week comes I'll be able to sit back and enjoy the festivities. My cakes are done, now comes the business of almond paste and icing!

This year, it will be a cinch because I've bought some of the delicious almond paste, made by a local store, that contains no substitutes, being made of almonds, eggs and sugar. It sells $1.50 a pound or 78 cents for a half pound.

The same store has another item which you can order that's bound to place high on the popularity poll. This is a large shallow wicker basket, full of dates, dressed up in party dress, with fillings of pecans or overshirts of coconut and almonds. This eye-appealing item sells at $4.25.

Let Penny Saver give you a hand with your Christmas baking problems. Phone her at 382-3131.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Loosely Woven Fabric Demands Small Stitches

Dear Eunice:

"How can I ever thank you for the great way you have taught us to make bound buttonholes? I have just had one disaster, that was making them in a very loosely woven fabric. I don't think I cut too far, but the ends did fray out. Can you guess what I did?"

—Mrs. O.P.M.

Dear Mrs. O.P.M.:

My guess would be that you used too long a stitch when you sewed the welts on, and if so, your threads from the loosely woven fabric weren't caught into the stitching line well enough.

When you are working with this type of fabric, it is best to use a much smaller stitch and it wouldn't be wrong to stitch the line twice. I think this will prevent any further problems.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

(The Question Box)

Q "Is exercise good for people who want to gain weight? There is nothing physically wrong with me. I have had a checkup by my doctor. I eat a well-balanced diet and some snacks in between meals. I can't seem to gain. What about exercise?"

A Mild exercise is helpful to the would-be gainer. Breathing exercises and stretching relaxing motions are splendid. Swimming is tops. Mild exercise is beneficial because it promotes appetite. Also most underweights are tense and high strung and mild exercise is relaxing.

Q "I am 16 years old and I have a problem which worries me a lot. Sometimes my mouth is very dry. It seems that this happens especially when I go out on a date. I brush my teeth after every meal and even use a mouth wash. I've tried eating mints for bad breath before going out on a date but my mouth is still dry. I'm embarrassed to look people in the face when I talk to them for fear I will offend them. Do you think this dry mouth is a sign of bad breath? What could cause it and why do I have it only when I have a date?"

A Apparently, your dry mouth is due to nervousness. You are probably shy. This is a reaction in the same class with blushing. Your worry about your dry mouth will only aggravate the condition. Relax. Stop worrying. There is no reason to think that this will cause your breath to be offensive.

Q "Would a reducing cream help a double chin?"

A If there were such a thing I suppose it would help. So far as I know there is no such thing.

Q "I am 15 years old, 5 feet, 3 inches tall and weigh 138 pounds. The problem is my mother has laid down the law and is directing my activities until I lose 10 pounds. I intend to go on a starvation diet or just eat a light dinner. What is your advice? Does drinking water help?

A If you have a large build a 10 pound loss may be enough. Let me beg of you, don't reduce foolishly. You need a well-balanced diet, especially at your age, when you are developing so rapidly. Just eat less of everything and cut out the trimmings such as candy, soda fountain goodies, cakes and pies. Cream sauce and gravy. Get up from the table feeling as though you could enjoy a little more to eat. If you try to lose too fast you will damage your looks as well as your health. Water has no effect.

"Inn-Side" Talks

Olde England Inn derives its name from a famous hostelry on the shores of Lake Windermere, "Olde England Hotel" in the Lake District of England. The Inn was founded in 1946, in the stately old mansion of the Slater family. Its architect was one of B.C.'s most famous, Samuel McLure, noted in Victoria for his Tudor-style homes. Its owners today, Sam Lane, ex-RAF squadron leader, and his Victoria born wife, Rosina, have completely restored the mansion to its former charm and over the 17 years of being an Inn, it has become world famous, following the traditional English Inn, good food and warm welcome for the guest requiring a bedroom and good cheer.

December Vows

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Haddow, 3719 Raymond Street, have announced the engagement of their only daughter, Barbara Catherine, to Mr. Lawrence Kenneth Bishop, only son of CPO and Mrs. Lawrence B. Bishop, 863 Parklands. The wedding will take place in the home of the bride-elect's parents on Saturday, Dec. 28, at 2 p.m., with Rev. E. F. Church officiating.

With no galley duties and no watches to keep, Judi Cameron found travelling in the P and O-Orient Lines' Ss. Orsova "luxury plus!"

There was no lack of doctors "in the ship" when the P and O-Orient Lines' Ss. Orsova docked in Vancouver, Thursday evening. Among them were five Victorians and their wives, left to right, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. McMahon, Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Whitehead, Dr. and Mrs. George Bigelow, Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Bassett and Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Heffernan. The group was returning after attending a 10-day convention of the Pan-Pacific Surgical Association in Honolulu which meets once in three years.

Aussie Miss Sets Sights on Being Maid With a Mizzen

By PAT DUFOUR

Many a young girl steps out into life in search of a "mission" but 22-year-old Judi Cameron will settle for a "mizzen" any time. Especially if it's attached to a 34-foot ketch like the one she sailed in from Auckland, N.Z., to Honolulu.

Judi was a passenger aboard the P and O-Orient Lines Orsova when she docked in Vancouver Thursday.

An "Aussie and proud of it," Miss Cameron left her native Sydney in search of adventure and "the chance to show that I could make it on my own."

Her adventures saw her trying a spot of sheep shearing, pounding a typewriter and working as a nurses' aid in an Auckland mental hospital.

It was in Auckland that her big adventure began. "I saw a newspaper advertisement that said the 34-foot ketch, Nina, was in search of a crew. Amazingly enough, it warned 'no men need apply.'"

"This sounded just what I was looking for. I dashed down to the docks. I'll never forget my first sight of Nina, she looked so small. I'd never sailed in my life."

John and Pat Samson, the owners, had "dressed ship" for the occasion. Decorations were a little unorthodox, being the "nappies" in the daily wash, belonging to their small baby.

Finally, they set sail for the Islands. Together with the Samsons and Judi were two other sailorettes, Judy, Mc-Nichol, 21, and Lynette Hillier, 18.

For convenience, the baby was sent on to their destination by air.

In spite of Judi's ignorance of "rag hauling," she was taken on because "John thought I would be as strong as any man." One of the other girls knew how to navigate and the other paid her way.

Why did the Samsons stipulate a female crew? "John thought that women would be neater, quieter and wouldn't complicate life by bringing native women aboard at the various ports."

Judi insists that four women and a man make an ideal crew. "There was no embarrassment, no hiding behind bunks when we changed. We just turned our backs and got on with the business."

The five-month trip had its highlights. One was the time they lost their charts over the side, just before trying to navigate an entrance to an island, guarded by hidden coral reefs.

Another time was when the Nina went into the freight-hauling business. "We took on half a ton of pineapples, securing them on deck, under the dinghy."

Judi doesn't recommend the fruit for a steady sea diet. "They're much too sweet." The Nina's crew lived on coffee.

A Surprise

Mrs. Ross Murray was hostess in her Battery Street home recently at a surprise shower honoring Miss Ann Macdonald, a bride-elect of this month. Corages were presented to her and to her mother, Mrs. F. Macdonald. Gifts were in a large decorated replica of a cup and saucer. Other invited guests were Mrs. B. Montgomery, Mrs. C. P. Lee, Mrs. P. Jenks, Mrs. N. Pedersen, Mrs. N. Erskine, Mrs. A. Moyes-Wann, Mrs. T. Simmons, Mrs. C. Sutherland, Mrs. D. MacPhail, Miss Elizabeth Simmons and Master Scott Montgomery.

and more of Canada and finally set out "for a peek" at continental Europe.

Miss Cameron's fondest memories are of Tahiti. "The women all have marvellous figures and beautiful black hair, even though many of them have lost their teeth."

She particularly admires the Tahitians' happy, easy-going attitude to life, although she fears that tourism will spoil her "favorite people" in time. "Already they have status symbols." But, as Judi explains, social prominence is judged by different standards than ours.

"In Tahiti, the most valuable 'status symbol' a woman can have is to be able to have a baby with fair hair or skin. One little girl was proud as punch. She boasted that her small daughter had hair as fair as mine."

"When I asked her who the father was she told me, 'He's an American—he's gone now—but very fine fella!'"

Miss Cameron's immediate plans are to settle in Vancouver for a while—that is, if her job-hunting excursions are fruitful. Later, she hopes to see Alas-

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—A lot of girls write to me asking how they can land a husband when there's such fierce competition for us chaps.

First thing, girls, is: you simply must carry your guy's cigars in your handbag.

Alan King says so and I say so, and that settles it.

My B.W. won't and Milton Berle's wife Ruth once did, but that's irrelevant. They'll be forced. They've nothing else in their handbag, have they?

"I'll make for happier marriages," Alan King said at the Waldorf Empire Room, where he's breaking previous records. "What man has pockets big enough to carry these long Churchills that I smoke? Why should my wife object? I buy her the bags, don't I?"

"I SURE DO!" It made him seethe, thinking what he endures.

"I'm always thinking of her. In Paris I rush into a boutique. I say 'Gimme a lady's handbag quick.' I hold out a Churchill-size cigar. 'About two inches wider'n this,' I say. The clerk says 'Qu'est-ce que c'est?'"

"It's murder, all the money I spend buying her beautiful handbags. George Burns, Danny Thomas, President Kennedy... they all smoke cigars. Do they buy handsome handbags for their wives? Do you think I get any credit? Even when I got her an extra large bag something like a knapsack when she went to Europe with me! Wouldn't you think just once she'd say 'My husband is so unselfish?'"

He also asked Magistrate J. A. Byers to reduce bail by $10,000 so he can get out of jail. Bail is set at $6,000 at present, with $5,000 of it on the narcotics charge.

Smith wanted bail reduced to $2,500 on each charge "so I'll have a chance to meet it."

The magistrate refused the application, telling Smith he would have to apply to a higher court if he was dissatisfied.

Q—A penguin swim?
Most pictures we see show the penguin standing sedately on the frozen ground. He is a friendly bird. When visitors arrive at the South Pole, the penguin and his friends form a welcoming committee and waddle forward to greet him. Later, he shows the visitors his merry antics in the sea. For Mr. Penguin is at his best in the water.

The handsome emperor penguin lives on and off the frozen shores of Antarctica, land of the South Pole. He stands more than three feet tall and tips the scales at 90 pounds. His black and white tuxedo outfit is made of short feathers, and it feels like soft, thick fur. That neat coat sheds the water, which is very important. For Mr. Penguin is the very best swimming bird in the world. He feeds on fish, on the

Penguin Best Bird Swimmer

He lands with a plunk, and his big, fat body starts to skid over the slippery ice. Mr. Penguin is ready for this. He spreads out flat and uses his feet and his flippers to guide himself along like a toboggan. He brakes himself to a stop, and the fun is over until it is time to go fishing for dinner again. The penguin pulls himself up to his stately height and waddles away. He may stand quietly while he digests his fish or, if it is the right time of year, he waddles off to feed his hungry chick.

There are 17 different penguins in the world, and all of them live in the Southern Hemisphere. The great emperor is the giant of the family, and the smallest penguin is about one foot tall. There are penguins off the shores of Australia, South Africa and South America, and some of them live off Peru and the Galapagos Islands near the equator. And every penguin can swim better than any other kind of bird in the world.

DISASTER VICTIM with simulated head injury is rushed to X-ray from the shock and resuscitation room by Royal Jubilee staffers Roy Baldwin, in foreground, and Brian Huddlestone. Medical administrator Dr. Murray Anderson looks on. The injuries looked real, and close observation isn't recommended for people with queasy stomachs.

By TERRY MATTE

A mock disaster exercise at Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday night won the praise of one of Canada's top civil defence planners.

Dr. William S. Hacon, hospital services medical consultant for the federal department of health and welfare in Ottawa, said the exercise was one of the best he has seen in Canada.

"It was one of the most extensive drills I've seen and went very smoothly indeed," he said.

"Your hospitals are very able to handle a major emergency."

STAFF PRAISED

Dr. Murray Anderson, medical administrator of the Jubilee, praised his staff.

He said the exercise wasn't meant to simulate great treatment or operations, but was successful in showing the hospital could handle a large number of emergency patients at one time.

Theoretically, more than 200 people were injured or killed in an explosion at the Memorial Arena.

Of the 97 victims of the disaster admitted to the Jubilee, only one "died."

The victims included students, navy personnel, civil defence workers, and hospital employees.

They arrived in ambulances supplied and manned by the army, navy, St. John Ambulance Brigade and civil defence volunteers.

The victims received their injuries from personnel skilled in simulating burns, lacerations and smashed bones.

All of the injured were taken to the receiving and sorting area, which normally is the main lobby of the hospital.

There the incoming patient received a quick diagnosis, was identified, and shunted to the appropriate part of the hospital for treatment or further examination.

All 97 victims were processed in this area within 65 minutes.

Appraising the performance of the hospital staff and its disaster plan were 60 representatives of 23 Vancouver Island hospitals.

INSTITUTE

They are in Victoria attending Vancouver Island Hospital Disaster Institute, sponsored by the emergency health service of the B.C. department of health services and hospital insurance, and financed by the provincial civil defence organization.

Purpose of the meeting is to educate hospital officials on the fine points of disaster planning.

Jubilee held its first disaster exercise in 1954, another about 18 months ago, and experience gained from these trials was used to prepare the plan put into operation Thursday night.

SEVERE FACIAL CUTS of Allen Edwards, 14, are prepared for stitches by operating room nurse Mrs. B. Aylward and O.R. general service assistant Joe Grbavec, Dr.

H. M. Young, a perfectionist even in a mock exercise, later tried to apply stitches to Allen's nose but the plastic injury crumbled.

GLAD IT'S OVER and looking for somebody to scrape off their "wounds" are Dave Johns, 17; Jim Crawford, 17, and Allen Edwards, Dave and Jim both suffered from "severe burns," Allen from a crumbling nose. Of 97 victims admitted to the Jubilee, only one theoretically died.

Landmark Sought as Memento

A memento of the old brown timber boathouse at Oak Bay Marina may be preserved for posterity.

The cupola atop the structure, soon to be demolished, has long been a landmark in Oak Bay and is regarded by some as of historical significance.

Thursday night Oak Bay council's marina committee agreed to try to preserve the cupola. The committee is willing to present it to the Victoria Historical Society.

NEW LEASE

The committee recommended the lease to the Undersea Gardens be renewed for another year. Any further building on the docks should be deferred until council has studied the combined operation of the Gardens and the new restaurant, councillors said.

Crown of the Andes Sells in 90 Seconds

LONDON (AP)—The jewel-studded Crown of the Andes, which graced the Virgin of Popayan Cathedral in Colombia for three centuries, was sold today by an American syndicate to the Amsterdam diamond firm of Asschers for $55,000 ($165,000).

The sale at Sothebys auction house took exactly 90 seconds.

The crown, weighing 54 pounds is studded with 453 emeralds weighing 1,251 carats.

The crown was first placed on the statue of the Virgin in the Popayan Cathedral Dec. 8, 1599, at the Feast of the Immaculate Conception. It was a token of thanksgiving to the Virgin because the settlement had been spared from a plague.

In 1936 an American syndicate organized by the late Warren Piper of Chicago bought the crown from Popayan. The proceeds of the sale built an orphanage in the Colombian city. The syndicate is now headed by New York jeweler Oscar Hyman.

BOMB EXPERT STILL MUTE

MONTREAL (CP)—Sgt. Maj. Walter Leja, 42, maimed while dismantling a terrorist bomb six months ago, is in "generally good condition" but still unable to speak, officials of Queen Mary Veterans Hospital said Thursday. The explosives expert received multiple injuries and lost his left hand while lifting the home-made bomb from a suburban Westmount mail box May 17.

KENNEDY FACED MANY CRISES

"I believe in an America that is officially neither Catholic, Protestant nor Jewish," he summarized.

Some Protestant ministers deplored anti-Catholicism during a campaign in which anti-Catholic literature definitely was circulated.

As for Nixon, Kennedy absolved his Republican rival of any part in attacks on his religion.

But his brother and campaign manager, Robert F. Kennedy, and the Democratic national chairman, Senator Henry Jackson, charged that some local Republican leaders had abetted in the circulation of anti-Catholic literature.

Some Republicans, in turn, accused the Democrats of attempting to gain political advantage by trying to keep the religious issue alive in places where Catholics were concentrated.

RUNNING MATE A PROTESTANT

Before Kennedy's election, membership in the Catholic Church had been generally considered a political handicap for anyone seeking the Presidency. But Kennedy carried most of the traditional Protestant South as well as the big Northern states with large Catholic populations.

Senator Johnson, his running mate, was a member of the Christian Church.

Kennedy stressed several themes—that American prestige abroad had slipped dangerously, that the nation's margin-of-military superiority was narrowing, that its economic growth at home and its image abroad needed revitalizing.

And he emphasized what he termed the need for a dynamic America, "an America on the move again." He talked of new frontiers.

His cause was helped considerably by appearances on television in a series of four "televated" debates with his Republican rival, who until that time had been much more clearly established in the public consciousness.

Five Directors retire from office and one of the Professional Members and one of the Employer Members.

It is requested that all Members and by Order of the Board: A. L. McLELLAN, Secretary-Treasurer.

The millions of television viewers saw the image of a young, vigorous candidate, poised, cool, highly informed, quick on his feet and, above all, possessed of a reassuring self-confidence.

When critics made an issue of his youth, Kennedy retorted that the new problems of a new age required youth and vigor to deal with them.

Kennedy was so young when he first went to Congress that he frequently was mistaken for a pageboy. Even as a freshman senator he once had a similar experience. As he started to board the miniature subway car which runs between the Senate Office Building and the Capitol, a guard bawled at him:

"Stand back! Wait till the Senators are seated, PLEASE!" Kennedy waited.

MANY POLITICAL ASSETS

Kennedy was boyishly handsome, carrying a slim 175 pounds on his 6-foot frame, topped by a shock of unruly chestnut hair that was almost a trademark. He had a blue-eyed open-faced look, a friendly smile and a studied carelessness in dress and demeanor.

He talked with conviction, usually in machine-gun staccato.

His Second World War record and his authorship of a best-selling book, "Profiles in Courage," added to his stature. This book, which was awarded the 1957 Pulitzer Prize for biography, dealt with decisive moments in the lives of selected American public figures, some well-known, some obscure. He wrote it in longhand while recovering from dangerous spinal operations.

In 1940 he wrote "Why England Slept," an analysis of England's attitude before the start of the war. At that time he was only 23 years old.

Kennedy's father served as ambassador to Britain just prior to and during the early part of the war.

He vigorously opposed the United States entry into the conflict unless that country was attacked. He also was against passage of the Lend-Lease bill to provide supplies to Britain, and he denied the argument expressed in some quarters that "England is fighting our battle."

FATHER AND SON DIFFERED

As a result of his stand, the elder Kennedy was tagged with an isolationist label. He was also a controversial political figure. A rift developed between him and President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

When John Kennedy launched his Senate career, his father said he was "in complete disagreement" with him on foreign policy. "I couldn't possibly have a worse argument with anyone about foreign policy than I have had with my son," he said.

The former Ambassador said in a speech in 1952 that he was an isolationist "because I don't think the kind of help we're giving (foreign countries) has produced anything like the results it was supposed to produce."

Young Kennedy was an outstanding advocate of internationalism and strongly supported aid to Europe after the Second World War.

It was in that conflict that he distinguished himself as a junior grade naval lieutenant in command of a PT boat in Blackett Strait, off the enemy-infested Solomon Islands.

HIS BOAT SUNK

Early Monday morning, Aug. 2, 1943, a Japanese destroyer appeared suddenly out of the darkness and sliced the patrol boat diagonally in two.

The watertight bulkheads kept the bow of the PT boat afloat and on this the survivors drifted. About 2 p.m. Kennedy decided to abandon the bow section, which was about to sink, and try to reach a small island three miles away.

REFUGE NEAR ENEMY BASE

He swam to it, towing one man by holding in his teeth the straps from the sailor's life belt. The others clung to a plank and swam in a group. It took about five hours to reach land. Two days later the men had eaten all the coconuts on the island's two trees. Then they swam to a larger island where there were plenty.

For most of his adult years, Kennedy was plagued by back troubles.

These started with an injury he suffered while playing football during his sophomore year at Harvard. Then came a spinal injury in the South Pacific action. Kennedy underwent three operations, one so serious that he was administered the last rites of the Catholic Church.

An operation in 1945 was performed to relieve the pressure of nerve fibers on his spine. While preparing to make his first race for the Senate in 1952, Kennedy suffered a renewal of the pain. Later, this became more pronounced. He bought a rocking chair and installed a couch in his office.

AT DEATH'S DOOR

On October of 1954 he decided on another operation. This time doctors performed a spinal fusion operation in which bones in the affected area were fused with the help of an inserted metal plate. An infection developed and Kennedy lay near death for a while. He spent eight months in convalescence but failed to recover completely.

Another operation was performed in 1955 to remove the metal plate, to which the infection apparently was related.

In the spring of 1961, President Kennedy strained his back when he tossed several spadefuls of dirt at a ceremonial tree planting in Ottawa, Canada. Though in pain, Kennedy rushed off to Europe for a series of conferences with other world leaders. After his return, he had to hobble around on crutches for a time. This trouble was reported not to be connected with his other back troubles.

WORE A BRACE

The President wore a corset-like brace for his other back injuries and had a quarter-inch lift in the heel of his left shoe to compensate for a slight difference in the length of his legs. He slept with a board under his mattress.

Born in Brookline, Mass., May 29, 1917, Kennedy received his bachelor of science degree cum laude from Harvard in 1940 and then studied at the London School of Economics.

His father set up a million-dollar trust fund for each of his nine children when they were in early childhood. The Kennedy wealth was amassed from such widely diversified interests as banking, liquor, motion pictures, theatres, Wall Street and real estate. Once when questioned about his father's wealth, John Kennedy conceded drily: "He has some resources."

IN CONGRESS AT 29

John Kennedy entered politics at the age of 29, when he was elected to Congress. That was in 1946.

After winning re-election twice to the House of Representatives, he ran for the Senate in 1952 and defeated Senator Lodge.

He won by 70,000 votes despite the fact that Eisenhower, the Republican presidential candidate, swept normally Democratic Massachusetts by 210,000 in that GOP landslide year.

Even the Democratic leaders had considered Lodge unbeatable. Lodge himself was sure he was safe that he devoted much of his energies to Eisenhower. When he started looking after his own campaign, he found Kennedy had a highly efficient organization.

He lost, and later on President Eisenhower appointed Lodge U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

Kennedy's political stock was enhanced further when he won re-election in 1958 by the largest plurality ever piled up for a Senate seat in Massachusetts—almost 900,000.

In 1953 Kennedy and Miss Jacqueline Lee Bouvier were married in St. Mary's Catholic Church at Newport, R.I. Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston officiated and read a special message of blessing from the Pope. A daughter, Caroline Bouvier, was born in 1957. Three years later there was a son, John F. Jr.

NEARLY WON V.P. NOMINATION

While a freshman Senator, not yet 40 years old, Kennedy was a strong contender for the Democratic nomination for vice-president in 1956.

He had gone to the national convention that year unprepared to seek the nomination. He had said he was not a candidate, but would accept the nomination if it were offered him.

His candidacy came about almost spontaneously and he had almost no opportunity to push it.

Nevertheless, in the ballot, he challenged the widely known Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who four years earlier had made a spirited bid for selection as his party's standard bearer.

Kefauver again had been a candidate for the presidential nomination in 1952, but eventually withdrew and concentrated on gaining second place on the ticket.

The wide-open floor fight between supporters of the two senators developed into a tug-of-war that supplied the most dramatic moments of the entire party convulsion. Kefauver raced out in front on the first ballot, but the second was a different story. Kennedy at one point had a lead of nearly 100 votes.

Kefauver was opposed by many delegates of his native south because of his liberal views on racial integration. Tennessee itself had supported its junior senator, Albert Gore, until the end of the second ballot. Then it shifted to Kefauver, and that proved the turning point of the contest.

A WINNING LOSER

While defeated, Kennedy actually was a winner because of his surprising popular strength. He was encouraged to raise his sights to the presidential nomination.

During the next four years he prepared his drive toward that goal. He roamed around the country like a whirlwind, forever on the go, making speeches, meeting with politicians, exposing himself to potential delegates and voters, making friends. Kennedy visited every state and averaged two speeches a week.

When he felt he was ready, he announced early, thereby breaking with tradition. Then he mapped a hard schedule by entering seven presidential preferential primary elections. Some were calculated risks and some outright gambles—particularly the one in West Virginia.

Many political experts were sure that Kennedy's going into West Virginia's primary was a blunder. They figured his Catholic religion was an insuperable obstacle in a state with only a 5 per cent Catholic population.

Kennedy insisted a man's religion should not be a factor in deciding his fitness for office. Before the voting, he said: "I would hate to think I lost this election the day I was baptized."

He told friends he had to go into the West Virginia and other key primaries in order to prove that a Catholic could pull votes, even in Protestant territory. He was convinced he could not win the presidential nomination unless he could win the primaries, and thus had to run the risk the latter involved.

He won the West Virginia primary easily, as he did all the others.

Religion Again

Prior to the 1960 primary election balloting in the predominantly Protestant state of West Virginia, Kennedy discussed the religious question in an address before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington. In that speech he said he was not a Catholic candidate for President.

Kennedy began with the assertion that "I do not speak for the Catholic Church on issues of public policy—and no one in that church speaks for me."

He said he had voted often in the Senate against the wishes of many Catholics.

"The fact is," he went on, "that the Catholic Church is not a monolith—it is committed in this country to the principles of individual liberty—and it has no claim over my conduct as a public officer sworn to do the public interest."

What is it about the Presidency, he demanded, that some believe it ought not to be filled by a Catholic? He said members of his faith abounded in other national offices, including the U.S. Supreme Court.

Kennedy said the "only legitimate question that could be asked was: 'Would you, as President of the United States, be responsive in any way to ecclesiastical pressures or obligations of any kind that might interfere with your conduct of that office in the national interest?'"

"I have answered that question many times. My answer was and is 'no.'"

Big Victory

In the West Virginia primary, he won a smashing victory over his Protestant opponent, Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

"I had no doubt," Kennedy said in thanking the voters, "that you would cast your vote on the basis of the issues and not on any religious prejudice."

The family wealth undoubtedly gave Kennedy an important advantage in the primary contests. It enabled him to have his own plane, with a crew of three, and to buy advertising space in newspapers and on the radio. Funds for staffs were never lacking. One estimate was that he spent $750,000 on primaries and convention machinery.

He won the presidential nomination on the first ballot at the convention in Los Angeles. Senator Johnson, who controlled the U.S. Senate as majority leader, was Kennedy's main opponent. But the convention rejected Johnson, and also two other party stalwarts—Sen. Stuart Symington and Adlai E. Stevenson, twice the standard bearer.

Kennedy chose Johnson as his running mate.

Truman Support

Former President Harry S. Truman, intimating that he considered the Democratic national convention was rigged for Kennedy, refused to attend. He said he refused "because I have no desire whatever to be a party to proceedings that are taking on the aspects of a pre-arranged affair."

He favored Symington for the nomination. However, after Kennedy's selection, Truman campaigned for him.

In nominating the urbane Boston Irishman, scion of wealth and Harvard graduate with a broad "A" accent, Governor Orville Freeman of Minnesota described him as a man of courage and drive, a man who would be "a great power for peace, for assurance and security."

Several times over the years Kennedy expressed the opinion that being a Catholic was not a hindrance to a presidential candidacy. "The people today are more interested in a man's talent and ability than his religious convictions," he said on one occasion.

In an article in Look magazine early in 1959, Kennedy

Kennedy Contributed His Salary to Charity

President John F. Kennedy, a multi-millionaire in his own right, contributed his presidential salary of $100,000 annually to charity.

Three decades before Kennedy, President Herbert Hoover, also wealthy, donated his salary to charity.

Kennedy's personal fortune came from his father, multi-millionaire Joseph P. Kennedy, who established trust funds for his children. At the time of Kennedy's inauguration, his press secretary, Pierre Salinger, said the president had a "gross net income of about $500,000—about $100,000 after taxes—from the trust funds' investments."

Kennedy began contributing his government salaries to charity in 1947 when he entered Congress.

He said that religion and government be kept separated. He declared himself strongly opposed to federal aid for any church or religious school, and against appointment of a U.S. ambassador to the Vatican.

"Whatever one's religion in his private life may be," Kennedy said, "for the officeholder nothing takes precedence over his oath to uphold the Constitution and all its parts—including the First Amendment and the strict separation of church and state."

"I believe as a Senator that the separation of church and state is fundamental in our American concept and heritage and should remain so."

"I am flatly opposed to the appointment of an ambassador to the Vatican. Whatever advantages it might have in Rome—and I'm not convinced of these—they would be more than offset by the divisive effect at home."

Turning to education, he said: "There can be no question of Federal funds being used for support of parochial or private schools. It's unconstitutional under the First Amendment as interpreted by the Supreme Court. I'm opposed to the Federal government's extending support to sustain any church or its schools."

On Birth Control

He declared that the matter of providing school buses, lunches and other services "is primarily social and economic and not religious. Each case must be judged on its merits within the law as interpreted by the courts."

On another controversial subject Kennedy opposed any move to use United States public funds to support birth control measures in foreign countries. He said he regarded any such use of Federal funds as "objectionable from the point of view of the United States."

A Special Study Committee had recommended to President Eisenhower that this country supply other nations requesting it, information to help them keep mushrooming populations within bounds.

Subsequently the Catholic hierarchy of the United States had said U.S. Catholics "will not support any public assistance either at home or abroad, to promote artificial birth prevention."

Kennedy was a tireless campaigner, frequently going at a furious pace through 16 and 18 hour days. Sometimes women tried to kiss him. He backed away in near panic. He handed a baby to kiss, he would hoist it awkwardly and then hand it back.

French Helped Create Their Own Troubles

OTTAWA (UPI) — New Democrat Douglas Fisher said Wednesday Quebec can blame its own politicians—provincial Social Credit—was the most "one-sided I have ever encountered" to the federal government.

"The English didn't connive," Fisher told the Commons. "The French took a full part in the decisions."

He spoke before the house approved a resolution that will change the short title of the Centennial Act to suit Quebec Premier Jean Lesage.

SECOND READING

The government, which has been charged with bowing to an "ultimatum" from Lesage, will seek second reading of the bill today.

Fisher, who also criticized Lesage for failing to tell the rest of Canada clearly what objections his province has to the constitution, said that those Quebecers "wailing" about the situation should look at history.

He said the historical interpretation by many Quebec members—particularly the Social Credit—was the most "one-sided I have ever encountered" to the federal government.

"When they complain that Quebec's rights have been sidestepped, most have been made with the agreement of the Quebec members and provincial representatives," he added.

Gilles Gregoire (SC—La-pointe) had charged the British North America Act had been violated many times and always by the federal government.

Fisher said the failure of Lesage and other provincial spokesmen to state their objections had left the English "pathetic—and in the position of 'having to keep their mouths shut while the French run around attacking them.'"

ACT VIOLATED

Several Conservative speakers rapped the government's resolution because of its identification with Quebec demands. Front-bencher Alvin Hamilton said "I have a feeling of distaste as a Canadian that I have to do anything in this House because of an ultimatum."

Privy Council President Maurice Lamontagne said Tuesday Lesage would not participate in the centennial unless the word "national" was dropped from the short title of the Centennial Act.

He said: "It seems to be a matter of the English always having to back down and retreat because of these co-nationalists-of-ours."

ALL MUST SHARE

He agreed the constitution needed revamping but warned other provinces as well as Quebec must have a say in how it is done.

KENNEDY ASSASSINATED

Shot in Head From Ambush at Dallas

Johnson Sworn In

DALLAS (AP)—Lyndon B. Johnson was sworn in as president of the United States at 2:38 p.m., EST, today. The oath was administered by U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes. Johnson took the oath aboard the presidential plane at Dallas' Love field. He was preparing to fly to Washington to take over the U.S. government.

Schools Close

Premier Bennett asked all B.C. schools to close this afternoon in memory of President Kennedy.

He relayed the request to his Victoria office from Vancouver where he is staying before leaving Saturday for an Ottawa conference.

'Terrible Thing'—Rosellini

OLYMPIA, Wash. (CP)—

"Oh, my god." That was the immediate reaction of Washington State Governor Albert Rosellini today on being informed of the death of President Kennedy by assassination in Dallas, Texas.

"This is a terrible thing. I'm shocked out of reason and almost out of words."

Rosellini's exclamation was typical of the reaction in high and low circles over Washington State.

His voice quivering, Rosellini said: "This is a tremendous loss, not only to this country, but to the world."

Kennedy (Indicated By Arrow) Slumps After Shooting
'B.C. in Deep Mourning For Loss of Good Friend'

British Columbia is in deep mourning for a good friend. Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today.

The premier made the following official government statement on the death of President Kennedy:

"In the passing of the great President of the United States of America, which is a shock to the whole Western world, we in British Columbia especially feel this loss, as he was always a good friend to our province and to Canada."

"He was an outstanding husband and father, a great world statesman, and a good friend. All British Columbians are

Killer Escapes But Rifle Found

(Times News Services)

DALLAS, Texas — President John F. Kennedy, 36th president of the United States, was shot to death today by a hidden assassin armed with a high-powered rifle.

The identity of the assassin or assassins was not immediately known.

Kennedy, 46, lived about 30 minutes after a sniper cut him down as his limousine left downtown Dallas. Reporters said the shot that hit him was fired about 10:30 a.m. PST (1:30 p.m. EST). A hospital announcement said he died at approximately 1 p.m. (11 a.m. PST) of a bullet wound in the head.

Automatically, the mantle of the presidency fell to Vice-President Lyndon B. Johnson, a native Texan who had been riding two cars behind Kennedy.

The assistant presidential press secretary, Malcolm Kilduff, said Johnson was not hit. Johnson previously had been reported wounded.

The president's body was scheduled to be flown to Washington this afternoon.

Futile Effort to Save Life

Kennedy died at Parkland Hospital, where his bullet-pierced body had been taken to save his life.

Lying wounded at the same hospital was Governor John Connally of Texas, who was cut down by the same fusillade that ended the life of the youngest man ever elected to the presidency.

Connally and his wife had been riding with the President and Mrs. Kennedy.

Jacqueline Kennedy cradled her dying husband's blood-smeared head in her arms as the presidential limousine raced to the hospital.

City Hunted for Assassin

Police ordered an unprecedented dragnet of the city, hunting for the assassin.

They believe the fatal shots were fired by a white man about 30, slender of build, weighing about 165 pounds and standing five feet, 10 inches.

The Dallas sheriff's department said a rifle had

Time to Set Policy

BACK IN 1945 THE CANADIAN government produced a White Paper on income and employment which outlined basic government economic policy for the next 12 years.

Of course, in that period, revisions had to be made as certain circumstances changed substantially from what had been foreseen at the time the White Paper was drawn up. Nevertheless, the radical change in the Canadian economy during the war years, when Canada emerged as a foremost industrial nation, was accepted as a basis for government policy and industrial growth was actively pursued.

The government of that day believed it knew where it was going and had an economic and political philosophy in which it could express its plans for the future.

From a speaker at the Canadian Tax Foundation convention in Vancouver this week, Toronto lawyer Mr. W. A. Macdonald, comes the suggestion that it is time for a Canadian government to produce something comparable to the 1945 White Paper.

Mr. Macdonald believes that Ottawa's political problems over foreign ownership of Canadian industry show that "what is now required and what cannot be honorably avoided is the making of some choices based on Ottawa's view of the future and on its political and economic philosophy."

This is not, furthermore, a task which can be relegated to royal commissions. Mr. Macdonald says, nor can it be turned over to the new Economic Council or any other body.

In fact, before any commission or council can effectively do its job, it should know where the government intends to lead the country. In the cases of two royal commissions currently in session, studying banking and taxation, Mr. Macdonald asks:

"What does the government conceive to be the major policies which will support both optimum economic growth and a vital Canadian nation? How can either of these royal commissions make relevant recommendations without knowing the stand the government takes in these areas?"

Too Heavy Demands of Office

NEWSPAPER READERS in all parts of Canada have been shocked this week by the tragic death of Toronto's Mayor Donald Summerville. This is a sentiment shared by many to whom he was previously unknown as well as by those who were close acquaintances.

The facts are simply told. A man of only 48, a former athlete and popular civic leader who had burdened himself too heavily by conscientious application to his duties, accepted an invitation to appear briefly in a charity hockey game. Following a pile-up in front of the goal he was tending, he skated uncertainly from the ice, collapsed in the dressing-room and died within minutes from a heart attack.

It seems apparent from the reports of his crowded days as mayor

While it is often argued that royal commissions provide the facts upon which governments can base policy, there is much to be said for Mr. Macdonald's argument that this is putting the cart before the horse.

How can a royal commission answer, for instance, the question of how much social welfare is necessary and/or desirable for the country as a whole, whether or not some regulation of business is necessary in the interests of the general population, or the degree to which private ownership of certain sections of the economy should be subordinated to public ownership.

These are questions which can only be answered in terms of political philosophy and it is not enough to provide answers which are good only for a month or for a year.

Similarly with the single most important problem facing Canada, the course to be pursued on foreign investment with its implications for Canada's future as a sovereign nation, no royal commission can provide a solution. The government must provide a clear policy based on a decision as much political as economic and one which can serve as a guide until the problem has been solved.

So far, unfortunately, all Ottawa has provided on this problem is negative policy in a budget which attempted to penalize foreign investment while leaving tax "loopholes" which were intended to encourage the growth of Canadian investment in the country.

As Mr. Macdonald said in Vancouver: "This really isn't the way we should handle our economic relations with other countries, nor is it the way we wish other countries to handle their economic relations with us."

The present government has indicated its desire to free the Canadian economy from its excessive reliance on foreign capital; it has so far enunciated no political philosophy on how this is to be accomplished. Until it does so there can be no useful discussion with the other nations concerned of the fundamental matters underlying the foreign investment problems.

of Toronto that he was pushing himself beyond his physical resources.

Had he been less dedicated to his work, less in public demand, less generous with his time, Mayor Donald Summerville might still be alive — to the gratification of uncounted friends and admirers.

Because he refused to spare himself, he is lost to the people of Toronto, and the loss, as tributes have disclosed, extends far beyond the capital of Ontario.

Here is a tragic example of the toll exacted today on some men by the demands of public office. And in the tragedy resides a warning to some of them who, for the best of motives, are spending themselves too prodigally in the services they have undertaken.

'That Was the Week' Ending

THAT WAS THE WEEK THAT was, British television's controversial and often satirically brilliant "FW3," becomes the show that isn't on December 28.

The British Broadcasting Corporation has explained that with the approach of the 1964 general election and the resultant sharper controversy over issues "the political content of the program, which has been one of its principal and most successful constituents, will clearly be more and more difficult to maintain."

So the show will bow out, but not before establishing itself as something of a phenomenon on what the trans-Atlantic viewers call "telly." It boosted its opening audience of 3.5 millions to a peak of 12 millions, though it has dropped since to nine million.

To its admirers, says one reviewer, it has offered a sharp, pungent, and amusing commentary on the follies and foibles of the British scene.

To its adverse critics it has confused petulance and bad temper with Swift's "savage indignation" and mistaken the bludgeon of dudgeon for the rapier of wit, malice for mockery, and smut for sophistication.

The house is divided, but no one questions the magnetism of this "show with a difference" to the people who watch the small screen from Lands End to John o' Groat's.

Let's Call Disney

A SCIENCE-FICTION WRITER in California has proposed a method of solving the Los Angeles traffic imbroglio. The people of that city can emerge from their problem simply — by electing Walt Disney mayor, he says.

"Wouldn't most of us," asks the science fiction writer, "take it on faith that old Walt could part the waters, vanquish the vapors, still the car thunders, lead us across the dry Los Angeles River, and sell us reasonable acreage in the re-opened orange groves of Eden?"

If Disney can do that, perhaps

he could come north and solve a residual problem of the un-roundabout at the intersection of Hillside, Douglas, etc.

On one of the small islands that has emerged from the diversion of some traffic flows there, a short sidewalk about 10 feet long, has been constructed. On the next island in natural progress north, there is no sidewalk. When you've done the first eight or 10 feet, there's nowhere to go — unless, perhaps, you have one of those October 31 broomsticks, a team of December 25 reindeer, or... but, let's call Disney. He'll have the answer.

"For what we are about to receive..."

Small children, three of 70 in the hospital built by the Unitarian Service Committee in Mokpo, South Korea, give thanks in the age-old gesture for help provided by Canadians — among them subscribers to the Victoria Daily Times annual campaign for "friendship dollars."

going Sir Alec who stood up at the dispatch box to reply to an incisively worded 43-minute onslaught on government policy by Opposition Leader Harold Wilson. But the audience was different. Gone were the amateurs, the worshipping crowds of middle-aged Tory ladies from the Scottish hills. This was an audience of professionals.

Feeble

The best that can be said of Sir Alec's performance is that he never quite went under for the third time during his hour-long ordeal. Early in the noisy proceedings he fell flat with a feeble attempt to explain what he meant at the Lord Mayor's banquet when he referred to the London financial district as the source of wealth in Britain. This was meant in the sense that it was the first great trading centre, he told the House. The industrialist, inventor and worker really produce the wealth.

It was hardly a matter worth raising. In the next sentence he made a historical error, claiming that a Labor government had originally instituted the now-controversial service charges on National Health Service prescriptions. When his error was pointed out by Mr. Wilson, he closed lamely with: "Perhaps we can turn from a review of the past."

Discussing the national economy, he fell into his old habit of confusing the meaning of production and productivity. He used the theme that the government's costly new programs are "being accelerated after long preparation" to answer Labor charges of 12 years of Tory inactivity. He got into a fruitless argument about university statistics and bogged down in housing and road figures.

Desperately striving for a reply to an interjection on transport policy, he said alternative transport must "somehow" be found when rail lines are closed. At one point he committed the politician's cardinal sin of admitting that the leader of the Opposition may someday be prime minister.

Sir Alec has not developed the sensitive Parliamentary antennae such as possessed by Mr. R. A. Butler, that enable a front-bencher to handle instantly any situation in the House. He also lacks the fluent grasp of facts that enables Mr. Wilson for example, to leap up on points of detail and get at the heart of issues.

Doubtful Master

These defects may improve in time, but it is doubtful that Sir Alec will ever be a master of the House of Commons or of Mr. Wilson in that House.

If Sir Alec succeeds it may well be as "man of the people" rather than as "man of Parliament." Political observers here, fretting over the decline of Parliament, fear that in the next few months the television and front page personality of the prime minister may come to dominate the political scene to an unprecedented degree.

Letters

The Flag

I consider the letter about Canada's national flag in the Victoria Daily Times of Nov. 18, a very sensible one and coming from a resident of Britain all the more so. She suggests "the Canadian coat of arms in the top left-hand corner, instead of the present Union Jack... and that nice green maple leaves be placed on the rest of the flag. I would though, also like to see dogwood flower."

Coming from one who, as I, was born and raised in the British army, and having five younger brothers in that terrible First World War, one from Australia, formerly from Canada, I say I am laying a bet, but I know that those brothers of mine, what's left of them, would agree with me as they valued the assistance our Canadians gave them in "the Kaiser Bill War."

Let's Have An Inquiry

Your issue of Nov. 7 carried an account of a meeting of the Victoria Labor Council at which meeting a resolution was passed calling for a Royal Commission to enquire into the shooting of three union men at Resource Siding and the light penalty (fine of $100 each) imposed on the men who did the shooting.

Let us have this inquiry by all means. Let us know who organized and instigated an attack on men who were quite legally employed in minding their own business.

Let us know why ten provincial policemen could not restrain this gang of "peaceful pickets."

Let us know why men are fined $100 for protesting their persons and property from attack when the police could not do so.

Let us know why international labor skates can swagger about this country with their thugs and goon squads threatening and intimidating and beating Canadian workers who resist them.

The woodworkers who took part in this attack were probably decent Joes. The men who put them up to this attack are the guilty ones. They should carry the blame of these deaths and injuries.

The Victoria Labor Council has little to do when it passed such a resolution. Smart remarks about establishing the price of killing a man don't help. Comparing this incident to killing a mouse out of season is also the measure of the man who made it.

More Christians Needed

Re the report of panel discussion, "Should Religion and Politics Mix?" All would agree where religion is exploited to usurp power as in South Viet Nam, that they should not.

Christians are often accused of being narrow. This may or may not be true, depending on your definition of either term. Many are Christians in name alone, not living the life. Others classify themselves simply because they live in a so-called Christian country. But Canada is no longer that.

As for mixing politics and religion, all would lament it. But what Canada and the whole world needs is more Christianity as written in God's Word, which most of its most vigorous critics have never thoroughly read nor studied with an open mind. As well might the member of a fraternal society, of a service club or a patriotic society be barred from politics, as to bar a Christian because he is such.

The increasingly common scandals in political circles in so many countries seem to cry out for some Christian leaving. Under such circumstances the only solution seems to be for more of God's servants, ordained or otherwise, to enter the political field.

Is a sprinkling of ministers any worse than a preponderance of lawyers, business men or other classes?

Also Helped

While reading the editorial page of The Daily Times of Nov. 18, I came upon the subtitle of "A Hand for the Handicapped."

Within its contents are mentioned three local organizations who helped make the Goodwill Enterprises' collection drive for the handicapped the most successful on record. Admitted that these groups did an excellent job. I was rather disturbed not to find mention of the Victoria Radio Aid Citizens' Band Club.

Members of the group donated a good deal of time to help dispatch and operate radio-controlled cars which aided in the picking-up of donations.

I feel they should be recognized along with the other groups.

Zigs and Zags in East Europe's Progress Toward Freedom

By WALTER LIPPMANN

YESTERDAY, speaking of communism in Eastern Europe, I said that as the tensions have become relaxed because the fear of nuclear war is subsiding, the discipline which holds together the Eastern alliance has also become relaxed.

It is necessary, however, to be cautious about drawing conclusions from this fact. The easiest mistake to make is to suppose that a tendency in one direction, say toward more individual freedom, will develop in a straight line until countries like Poland and Hungary, for example, have as much and the same kind of freedom which exists in this country.

In actual fact, the line of development is not straight, but zigzag, and while on the whole, the direction is away from the absolute totalitarian police state, this main trend has many forward and backward movements; rather like the booms and recessions of the business cycle.

I became very aware of this when I arrived in Poland after I had been in Hungary. Quite obviously, these two neighboring Communist countries are in strikingly different phases of their development.

Hungary is buoyant with the exhilaration that comes from the opening up of a closed society. The apparatus of the police state and the apparatus of the Communist party are still there, and it is not thought safe to speak too frankly, except when walking in the open air. But the frontiers have been opened to tourists going both ways, and there has been, except in the case of Cardinal Mindszenty, a political amnesty. A fair amount of fresh air from the outside world is making the Hungarians feel better.

Coming into Warsaw after Budapest, one realizes quickly that, after the opening up, there is likely to be a pause. Since the Second World War, I have been twice before to Warsaw, most recently in 1958. Poland was then in the aftermath of a successful defence of Polish autonomy against imperial and centralizing demands from Moscow. At that time the atmosphere in Warsaw was buoyant as it is today in Budapest. It is now no longer so buoyant, and there is something that might be described as a fog of depression.

Poland is not going back to Stalinism. But, as one Communist dignitary admitted when I asked him about what had gone wrong, there is a pause. The windows are not being opened widely. Indeed, they are being closed somewhat. For said the Communist dignitary, the Poles "made such a big jump ahead in the late 1950s that now we must wait until the others catch up."

The man who said that is a leading theoretician of the Communist party. I do not think that what he said is the true explanation of the contrast today between Hungary and Poland. I think, rather, that we are confronted here with a problem which is universal — the problem of authority and liberty — the problem of how much freedom a people can enjoy without destroying authority which is needed to govern them. Or in reverse, the problem — how can they have governments with authority to govern them well and still enjoy and expand their personal freedom.

Poland had, I believe, achieved more freedom of speech and of ideas than was compatible with the kind of government which a Communist planned economy requires. When you open up the windows of a closed society, the drafts bring in not only fresh air, but also infections of various kinds.

The problem is not confined to the Communist world. It is, I venture to think, a central problem in the movement of renewal and reform and modernization which was initiated by Pope John XXIII. It is likewise, I imagine, the underlying problem in our own public controversy about "conservatism" and "liberalism." In the Communist states which are totalitarian in their original essence, the problem is now acute.

On the one hand, human flesh will no longer endure absolute authority and the sacrifices it demands; on the other hand, with unlimited freedom, the fabric of authority which is needed to govern may become unraveled and be pulled apart.

I have no doubt that, for example,

Mr. Khrushchev's personal inclination is toward liberalization and the opening of floods and of peace. But he is haunted by the continual threat of division and disunion, by the threat of a breakdown of morale and discipline, if there is too much liberty too soon in a country which has known only authoritarian rule throughout its history. It takes a very strong constitution and long habit to use unlimited liberty.

There is no use, therefore, to expect Khrushchev to move forward (as we understand the word) in a straight line. He is bound to zig and zag, to hack and to fill, in the effort to conserve his authority while he inches on in the direction he knows he must go.

The European Communist countries, including Russia, are no longer absolute dictatorships, which can impose the kind of sacrifice that Stalin imposed. Men like Khrushchev, Kadar and Gomulka are not despots; they are enormously powerful political bosses.

They too have their Gallup polls, though they do not publish them. They know that they have to allow enough freedom and provide enough private consumable wealth to give to their masses a sense of improvement and enough relief from poverty and regimentation to keep discontent from boiling over. Yet they have also to avoid providing so much freedom that parties can be formed and factions can come into the open and the central authority can be destroyed.

Spent for Dam In Vancouver
VANCOUVER (CP)—Contractors building the $73,000,000 Peace River dam have placed orders for $650,000 worth of equipment with six Vancouver companies.

The companies will supply seven short conveyors, structural steel and reinforcing steel, loading chutes and hoppers, and will fabricate a screening plant.

Meanwhile, Wright Engineers Ltd. of Vancouver is in advanced stages of designing an overall processing complex which will segregate and blend all construction materials to be placed in the dam over the next five years.

At the site a 100-foot coffer dam is about 25 per cent completed.

Work has started in blasting more than 10,000 feet of tunnels into the bedrock under the damsite to form part of the dam's essential facilities.

Nearly 750,000 cubic yards of dirt and rock has been stripped from abutments. A total of 7,000,000 yards of material must be excavated to lay bare the bedrock which will form the foundation for the 600-foot dam.

Some 500 acres covering part of the gravel marine struction material has been cleared.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1963—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

It is a disconcerting experience, let me tell you, to open an oven door and find a face staring out, but around our house we've grown used to that sort of thing this last week or two. So have other parents whose grade 12 hopefuls take art at Oak Bay High from instructor Bill West.

These young people, shaped, pasted and cooked the masks for The Birds, the hep and sassy remake of an Aristophanes comedy with which University of Victoria's smart Players' Club is currently tickling sell-out audiences at its theatre-in-the-swamp.

Like many another school project, this of the masks soon shifted from workshop to kitchen. Our mask consumed several editions of the Times, a quart of glue so potent that one splash of it anchored passersby to the linoleum, and enough cotton sheeting to sail a dinghy.

Having gone the route with the masks—two, since the wearer couldn't get into the first without shrinking his head—it seemed only logical to see the play.

No, doubt the university has on its someday list a proper theatre. Meanwhile, the Players' Club manages cleverly with a converted army hut.

In spite of tiered seats, revolving stage and some fancy plumage, there remained an eerie familiarity about the surroundings.

Here was where the orphanage cots once stood in geometric rows, blanket-corners squared against inspection. Here men worked on belts and webbing with Blanco, wrote letters and played their poorboy black-jack before lights out.

But no birds. The soldiers were long gone when the birds took over.

It was a good play, and my pleasure in it was heightened by the presence beside me of Eric Martin, our outspoken Social Credit minister of health.

With a son in the cast, Mr. Martin was torn between paternal pride, and anguish when his party came in for various potshots.

Only once, though, did he rebel.

"They should not," he growled, "mention Caouette and Social Credit in the same breath!"

That first-night audience contained a fair sprinkling of parents; patient souls who watched and listened with the pleased if mildly puzzled expressions of mothers and fathers turned out for such occasions.

The dialogue, here and there, was a jump beyond the decorous speech of school theatricals, and I'm not sure the Profumo song scored. I don't quite know why, either, since the words and music are clever. Perhaps it's just that most of us would prefer to forget that squalid episode.

What made the play extraordinary wasn't the finely planned and well-executed choreography, or a witty treatment which managed in spite of topical allusions and musical comedy atmosphere to retain the spirit and even the framework of Greek comedy.

With these, and fetching all to a fine, hot glow, was the veve with which the players tackled their job.

They made the playwright's satiric dream come alive: for three acts, Cloud Cuckoo Land became realer than earth.

As a play-goer of old-fashioned tastes, I like my sound effects to have authority. Better than we got, I wouldn't ask for. When the birds went to battle, the jet-fighter roar all but blasted us from our seats. Zeus' thunderbolts cracked and rumbled with complete conviction.

As you may have gathered, I'm enthusiastic about what goes on in that army hut, even though praising the production won't make any difference at the box-office.

Apparently Victoria has learned to know a good thing when it's offered; tickets to all performances were snapped up as soon as they went on sale.

There's talk of a possible second run early next year. I hope it materializes. Live theatre on an adult level is one of the happiest gifts a university can give to the community.

EDWARD LUM
... "full-time" promised

Motel Owner To Oppose Reeve Murphy

Two new candidates—one for reeve, one for councillor—have entered the Saanich municipal election race.

Motel owner and greenhouse operator Edward Lum says he will contest the reeveship against incumbent Stanley Murphy.

And Royal Oak Pharmacy owner Doug Crosby told the Times he has his nomination papers ready, but has not filed them yet.

"People want more attention given their affairs," says Mr. Lum, an unsuccessful Social Credit candidate in the April 8 federal election.

"You can't run a $5,000,000 corporation from behind a school desk."

AFTER SCHOOL

"Engineers and office staff are there during the day, and the present reeve cannot attend to the business... until after school hours."

"If elected, I will spend as much time as necessary, even full time."

"It is about time Saanich had a business approach to running the affairs of the municipality."

He added that amalgamation is "a dead issue."

SIX FOR THREE

Mr. Crosby's entry into the race makes six candidates trying for three council seats.

Incumbents Hugh Curtis and Gregory Cook have said they will run again, and a third seat—that of Coun. Robert Ostler who has moved to Powell River—is also open.

Ronald Weir, William Matlack and Lionel Speller are the three other candidates.

MEETING SET ON POLICE STATION VOTE

City council will hold a special meeting Tuesday to decide whether it will put a money bylaw before ratepayers at the Dec. 12 election for reconstruction of the police station.

Mayor R. B. Wilson, chairman of police commission, said cost estimates for the proposed work are not firm yet and he could not indicate the probable amount of the bylaw immediately.

The work would involve some addition to the building but most of the reconstruction would cover changing the interior layout of the existing station.

Plans for the project were endorsed by the commission at a closed meeting Thursday. The council meeting was called quickly to meet a statutory deadline of Nov. 25 for a decision to put the question to ratepayers.

W. H. M. Haldane, QC,

also reminded the magistrate at one point in their courtroom hassle:

"You occupy a judicial position and... get paid for it."

The argument ended with the magistrate telling Mr. Haldane, "I don't wish to be dictated to by you."

Mr. Haldane was defending a war veteran charged with theft of groceries from Woodward's Store.

INCONVENIENT

Magistrate Byers said he didn't want to take a plea because it would entail him hearing the case and this would be inconvenient for him. He is sitting temporarily in police court while Magistrate William Ostler is on holidays.

Mr. Haldane said, "There is such a thing as inconvenience of counsel."

"Is your convenience any greater than mine?" asked the magistrate.

Mr. Haldane told him that he gets paid for his job "... but I don't; only expenses."

Mr. Haldane said he would present documents showing why the case should be withdrawn and this did not involve the necessity for the magistrate to take a plea.

WOULDN'T LOOK

But Magistrate Byers, refused to look at the papers because, he said, there was no evidence of their authenticity.

Mr. Haldane then said the magistrate was not observing the rules of justice.

"You said you'd hear me. If you don't want to, well and good."

"These remarks ill befit you," Magistrate Byers told Mr. Haldane. "I am sure, on reflection, you will realize you don't mean them."

Magistrate Byers said withdrawal of the case rests with the crown prosecutor or the complainant anyway, and the court has nothing to do with it.

Mr. Haldane then asked the court reporter to note in the transcript that the magistrate refused to see documents in the case.

The documents he wanted to show the court included a letter from Woodward's agreeing to withdraw the charge, subject to the approval of the crown prosecutor and the court.

Other documents, from the Veterans' Department, showed the defendant suffers a 71-per-cent disability.

The case was adjourned to Dec. 2 when Magistrate Ostler will be back on the bench.

'Observe Rules Of Justice' Magistrate Told

Magistrate J. A. Byers was accused in court today of "not observing what should be the rules of justice" in a theft case.

W. H. M. Haldane, QC, also reminded the magistrate at one point in their courtroom hassle:

"You occupy a judicial position and... get paid for it."

The argument ended with the magistrate telling Mr. Haldane, "I don't wish to be dictated to by you."

Joint Move Asked On Saanich Lands

All Greater Victoria councils should get together and levy a special half-mill tax annually to grubstake a land-buying operation aimed at preserving some public recreational areas in the Saanich peninsula, a prominent businessman said today.

H. R. Stephen, former president of the Chamber of Commerce and the Greater Victoria Community Welfare Council, made the proposal in a lengthy and detailed report to the chamber's board of directors.

He warned that unless action is taken now to preserve some green areas, the tide of subdivision development will engulf the peninsula and forever ruin this area's natural amenities and chief attraction.

Mr. Stephen calculated that the half-mill levy in the four municipalities would raise about $100,000 each year and he was sure this could be boosted to $125,000 with an application to the provincial government for assistance.

He pointed out that although Central Saanich council is aware of the erosion of precious recreational assets, it could not be expected to undertake the heavy financial burden on Greater Victoria's behalf.

Mayor R. B. Wilson's immediate reaction was favorable. He said he hoped Mr. Stephen's ideas would receive sympathetic consideration because they provide a possible means of preserving this area's amenities.

"The time is arriving when we must take a positive stand on this question of area development. I believe we must stop fooling around and dragging our feet or it will be too late."

Mr. Stephen said the simplest and logical method of ensuring the area's future needs are met would be amalgamation of the present fragmented municipal jurisdictions.

But he pointed out this may not be accomplished for years, if ever, and meanwhile urban sprawl and short-sighted policies are wasting away the beauties and natural gifts of the area which set it apart from all other communities now.

Half-Mill Levy to Raise $100,000

An alternative ad hoc arrangement to prevent the worst damage would be: Formal approval of the master development plan, updated by the Capital Region Planning Board, by the municipalities so that it could not be contravened without majority approval.

Creation of an inter-municipal agency provided with the half-mill tax fund to purchase green spaces, beach accesses, woodlands and other scenic and recreational areas of Saanich Peninsula.

The first would provide negative control and the other positive control, Mr. Stephen said.

"It is clearly unreasonable to anticipate that the residents of Central and North Saanich will be prepared to purchase these areas for the benefit of the regions as a whole," his report said.

"Being themselves country dwellers they have no particular incentives to provide themselves with future 'escape hatches'."

"But to the residents of the thickly populated core, the ability to retreat from the pressures of urban living into the peaceful countryside is becoming more urgent with the passage of time."

"Moreover, as the threatening tide of settlement rolls steadily up the peninsula, the provision of recreational facilities becomes a matter of even greater urgency."

'Slowly But Surely Leached Away'

"Already several of the areas recommended by the plan for dedication to public enjoyment have passed to private use. Others are in the process of doing so."

"Slowly but surely this priceless inheritance is being leached away for want of a simple vehicle of acquisition."

He said such a vehicle could be set up by inter-municipal action, along the same lines as is already done by Greater Victoria Water District setup.

Mr. Stephen said the objection against creating one more in the growing list of inter-municipal agencies would be over-ridden by the desperate need to act quickly.

"It is clear that only swift action can preserve these priceless areas from eventual speculative development or private ownership."

Acting on this personal advice, Lieut. Boyd said he asked another member of the organization to be the official spokesman, "but I remain as president of the association in line with the admiral's assurance I have every right to be interested in municipal affairs."

NO COMMENT

Reeve Wurtelle was reported as saying he had no comment on what Adm. Landymore told Lieut. Boyd because he left the office before it was said.

He would not comment on a Victoria Labor Council resolution that he clarify his actions in going to the admiral or resign.

The resolution was aimed at learning the facts after Esquimalt council last week tabled a motion of censure against the reeve alleging he went to the admiral in an effort to intimidate his opponents in a civic election and to force Lieut. Boyd into silence.

Reeve Wurtelle told his council that he denied the charge but it decided to look into the matter further before dealing with the motion of censure.

HIS RIGHT

"After Reeve Wurtelle left, the admiral completely rejected the reeve's (request) and told me he was not going to interfere that it was my right to participate in municipal affairs."

"The admiral personally advised me it might be better not to be so prominent in the campaign."

Ask The Times

Q. When did the Japanese fire on a U.S. gunboat? Was it before the official start of the Second World War? L.B.

A. Yes. The U.S. gunboat Panay was sunk by Japanese gunfire Dec. 12, 1937, with the loss of two lives, on the Yangtze River above Nanking. The Japanese later apologized and paid indemnity.

Q. What is the tonnage of HMCS Fraser? J.M.

A. Her displacement is listed as 2,000 tons standard, 2,600 tons full load.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve problems of legal problems. We will not attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or collectibles. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Anyone wishing a question answered in the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor, questions and answers will be published daily.

Midnight tonight is your deadline.
That's when the United Appeal closes for a year, hoping to have enough money to enable 24 member welfare agencies to operate at full strength for another 12 months.

At press time, the fund was 92.5 per cent of the $400,000 target—$369,168.

Appeal officials are happy about one aspect... the amount is 105 per cent of last year's $350,000.

And that is 13 per cent above the North American average.

The View Royal Garden Club will hold its last meeting of the year on Wednesday evening at 7:30 in the View Royal Community Hall. Sam Arrow-smith will give a talk on greenhouse plants.

The RCN Pacific command fleet maintenance ship HMCS Cape Breton will return to base at 9 a.m. Saturday, instead of Tuesday as previously announced.

She has been on exercises in the Pacific with Canadian destroyers and units of the United States Navy. Berth will be at HMCS Naden.

Gordon Bowes, editor of "Peace River Chronicles" will speak on British Columbia's Peace River country at a meeting of the B.C. Historical Association, Victoria Branch on Nov. 28 at 8:15 p.m. in the Douglas Building cafeteria.

B.C. appears to be heading for fuller employment this winter.

Latest figures issued by the trade department show there are 32,000 unemployed in the province—3,000 fewer than last year.

The unemployed represent 5 per cent of the province's labor force, compared with 5.8 per cent at the same time in 1962.

The total work force is 625,000.

B.C.'s average industrial wage now stands at $90.40, down slightly from the summer months, but $3.44 a week more than it was last fall.

An informal committee will study spring and coho salmon along the Pacific coast, American and Canadian fisheries officials have decided.

Its purpose is to review available information on the migration of the fish to determine when and where fish bound for U.S. and Canadian streams intermingle, and to what extent.

There has been a general decline of spring salmon catches in recent years.

The McKenzie Avenue PTA will meet on Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. Harvey P. Michelson, supervisor of special education and guidance services for the Greater Victoria School Board, will give a talk on "Problem Children and Their Treatment."

Santa Season Starts Saturday With City Parade

Santa Claus makes his first official appearance in Victoria on Saturday morning in the Jaycees' Christmas Parade.

Complete with reindeer, sleigh bells and ho-ho-hos, Santa will ride a float, along the parade's 20-block route starting at 10 a.m. from the legislative buildings, and moving along Douglas to Hillside.

Marchers will hand away 5,000 candy canes and 5,000 balloons along the way.

Mounted units, bands, majorettes, clowns and animal figures will be featured.

Esquimalt has loaned its Puffing Billy Train—renamed the Candy Cane Special—and the YMCA has provided 24 members who will relieve Jaycees wearing the clown and animal costumes.

Cost of the parade is estimated at around $3,000, of which the Jaycees are contributing $1,500.

Little Damage To Navy Ship In Grounding

The naval auxiliary vessel CNAV Laymore was hauled out on the marine ways at Yarrow's Ltd. today for repairs to slight damage suffered in a grounding Thursday night.

She went aground on an island near Ten Mile Point while returning from the Prince Rupert area, where she was laying practice mines for RCN minesweepers.

A suddenly freshening wind and a good tide enabled the Laymore's skipper, Capt. Jean Francois, to work the ship off under her own power, and she reached HMC Dockyard at 12:15 a.m. today.

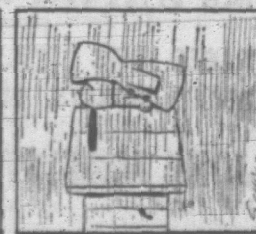

Preliminary survey by divers indicated she has suffered minor damage to one section of her hull.

Unions Ready To Negotiate

Boilermakers and shipwrights may hold discussions on their work jurisdiction dispute at Yarrow's shipyards, it was indicated today.

A Yarrow's spokesman said Boilermakers' Union business manager James McConachy had indicated the union's willingness to co-operate in talks with the shipwrights.

Arbitration hearings which followed a boilermakers' walk-out at Yarrow's Oct. 10 broke down because of the involvement of a third, unrepresented party—the shipwrights.

Body of President
Flown to Capital

(Times News Services)

DALLAS, Texas — A furtive sniper armed with a high-powered rifle murdered President John F. Kennedy today.
Barely two hours after Kennedy's death, Lyndon B. Johnson took the oath of office as the 37th president of the United States.The prime suspect was a man who was cornered and seized in a movie theatre in the Oak Cliff section soon after the assassination.
The "man in a brown shirt" shot and killed a police officer before he was subdued.The man was identified as Lee H. Oswald, chairman of a "Fair Play for Cuba Committee."Kennedy was shot through the head and neck as he rode through Dallas in the presidential limousine in what had been a triumphal motorcade.Johnson, who was Kennedy's vice-president, automatically succeeded to the presidency. The new president took the oath of office at about 3:39 p.m. EST (1:39 PST). For the first time in history, the oath was administered by a woman—U.S. District Judge Sarah
T. Hughes.

Sworn In on Plane

Johnson was sworn in aboard the presidential jet transport—Air Force One—at Dallas' Love Field. He then flew to Washington to take over the government which Kennedy had directed since Jan. 20, 1961. Kennedy's body was aboard the plane.Kennedy, 46, lived about 30 minutes after a sniper cut him down as his limousine left downtown Dallas. Reporters said the shot that hit him was fired about 10:30 a.m. PST. A hospital announcement said he died at approximately 11 a.m. PST of a bullet wound in the head.The assistant presidential press secretary, Malcolm Kilduff, said Johnson was not hit. Johnson previously had been reported wounded.

MEDICAL SUPPLIES WAREHOUSE

Pocket Hospital for CD Planned Near Sooke

Storage of B.C.'s first packaged 200-bed emergency hospital is planned by civil defence in the Sooke-Port Renfrew area within the fiscal year.

Provincial co-ordinator James Lister told Vancouver Island Hospital Disaster Institute Thursday it is hoped to build the first medical supplies warehouse "outside-the Greater Victoria area," which Victoria co-ordinator J. D. Somerville said is near Sooke.

The plan is part of a nationwide program for the pre-positioning of medical supplies close to areas where they could most likely be expected to be required in the event of major disaster.

He said he was reasonably sure B.C. leads the country in this, having already placed supplies in some federal buildings and is renting other depots.

Other "packaged" units expected to come in the near future include emergency health clinics and laboratories.

Mr. Lister said new hospitals construction is planned to include basement storage of medical supplies provided by the senior government.

In the case of the emergency hospital unit, components will be crated and packed in convenient sizes for immediate shipment to a major disaster area.

Fully stored, the hospital requires only 8,000 cubic feet of space, or about the volume of the average five-room house

Island MP Knocks Fish Treaty Change

OTTAWA (CP)—Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) said in the Commons Thursday he was shocked to learn that the government agreed to Japan fishing for halibut and herring in previously restricted areas off the British Columbia coast, without any official notification to the House of Commons.

Mr. Barnett said that under the international North Pacific Fisheries Convention, Canada, the United States and Japan had agreed to restrict fishing in certain areas.

This was an international treaty, he said, and while the cabinet may have power to make amendments to it, it should be required to table official documents.

He quoted correspondence indicating the treaty had been amended May 8 this year on the word of a top fisheries department official given orally. Fisheries Minister Robichaud said that the only document covering the matter is a cabinet minute, which cannot be tabled in the Commons to preserve cabinet secrecy. Mr. Robichaud said the procedure followed was exactly the same as when earlier amendments were made.

Dentist To Run For Board

DUNCAN—Dr. Neil Dorn-Ing, a dentist, has announced he will contest the Cowichan School Board seat representing the south end of the municipality.

The seat will be vacated at the end of the year by trustee Harold Whitfield.

James H. Taylor, University Road, also said he will contest the seat.

Other candidates are incumbents Will Dobson, representing the city of Duncan, and Mrs. Nancy Bailey, representing the rural school district.

Action Urged On Road To L. Cowichan

DUNCAN—The reorganized Duncan local of the B.C. Social Credit League has asked the department of highways to improve or repave the Cowichan Lake Road as soon as possible.

New president, Bert Kyle, an ambulance driver, said danger to human life is the chief factor in his determination to get the road improved.

He hoped the Social Credit group could prevail on Highways Minister Gagliardi to take action at once.

Other officers elected were Richard Price, vice president, Mrs. Ann Suttin, secretary, and Mrs. Eve Howden, treasurer, Ron Harper, membership
